40 MEN KILLED IN SECOND EXPLOSION

COAL DIGGERS TRAPPED BY DUST BLAST

RESCUERS HALTED

Toll of 72 Lives Is Taken In Two Pit Disasters In 24 Hours

SHANKTOWN, Pa. — (Associated Press)—Hope for the lives of forty miners, entombed late Saturday by an explosion in the Lancashire mine of the Barnes and Tucker Co., here was practically given up Saturday night when rescue workers reported that the wrecked mine was dense with "black damp" and that water was rising rapidly in the underground passageways.

The fan house of the mine was put out of commission. The poison gas the water and the lack of fresh air and a heavy fall of rock, impeded the progress of volunteer rescue workers who dug valiantly in an effort to reach the entombed men

Word of the disaster spread rapidl and within a few hours the rescue rnppoter of the entire western Pennsylvania bituminous coal field was rushing to the aid of the stricken community

Special trains from Pittsburgh, Johnstown and Altoona were carrying trained rescue crews of the United States Bureau of Mines, the Cambria Steel Co, and the Bethlehem Steel Co., to the scene. It was hoped that these men, wise in their calling would be able to combat the poison gas and water and fight their way thru the fall of rock to the number six heading where the entombed miners were at work when the blast came.

The first inkling of an explosion to those on the surface was a slight shock A moment later a cloud of black smoke drifted from the main entry, and the big fan stopped its humming. Superintendent Hamilton, in charge of the mine knew had happened and he flashed the word to Starford, a town nearby Miners off duty soon reached the scene and the work of organizing volunteer rescue crews was begun. The first rescue team had penetrated the wrecked passages only a few feet when they came upon six miners, staggering along the heading. These men, suffering from gas, were taken to the surface and sent to the Dunnville hospital.

HOPE GIVES WAY

Other rescuers were sent in, for it was soon discovered that the deadly gas was so thick a man could work only a short while. Fighting their way thru the rising water, the rescuers made their way toward the sixth heading. But at heading No. 4, they found a fall of rock, which, it was believed extended back to the sixth. Halted by the fall, the miners used a hammer to signal on an airpipe to their entombed fellow workers. But the signals were unanswered, and hopes gave way to despair.

On the surface there was the usual gathering of men, women and children, some related to the miners who had been trapped. Stricken dumb by the disaster, they were unmindful of the intense cold, a heavy snow and a high wind. The mercury stood at two degrees below zero.

After a careful check of the miners on the Lancashire payroll, Superintendent Hamilton estimated that from 40 to 45 miners had been trapped.

While the cause of the explosion was not known, miners familiar with the workings expressed the belief that it was a dust explosion, as the Lancashire was known to be free from gas

Shortly after 10 p. m., word came from the mine that the rescuers, digging thru the fall of rock, had located the body of a miner.

The man who had been caught in the cavein and had been crushed. The body was located just off the sixth heading and shortly after it was taken out the toiling miners broke thru the rock fall. Their hopes that the remainder of the workings was clear was soon blasted when they came upon another cavein just inside the

G. O. P. BLAMED FOR "GREATEST SCANDAL"

CORDELL HULL

WASHINGTON. —(Associated Press.)—Chairman Cordell Hull, of the Democratic national committee issued a statement Saturday night declaring the oil reserve disclosures are another evidence that the government is dominated by a "crowd of ruthless reactionaries."

"The multiplication of scandals under the Republican national administration which came into power March 4, 1921," he said, "with the Teapot Dome Naval oil scandal standing out as the greatest political scandal of this or any other generation, has created an additional political issue for the 1924 campaign, which without lessening the importance of many other sharply drawn vital issues, is of paramount importance to every voter and to every citizen regardless of political affiliations. The issue bluntly stated is.

"Shall the United States have corrupt government or clean government? • • • •

"When this administration came into power on March 4, 1921, it was dominated by the most reactionary element ever known in the history of a political party, which was in league with the most selfish and predacious financial and industrial special interests ever grouped together for public plunder and national exploration. The Republican reactionary leaders construed the huge majority of 1920 as a license to use the government for their own selfish and party ends. The predatory special interests which own and financially support the reactionary element in the Republican party, levied tribute upon the masses of the people as did the Bandit Tariff and his followers in Spain in the eighth century and have looted the government of property and resources

Administration officials have even turned over to private interests the oil reserves upon which our oil burning navy and merchant marine would have to rely in time of war. They have immeasurabely weakened if not vitally weakened their own nation's ability to defend itself against foreign aggression.

"This administration came in

COOLIDGE PLANS COURT ACTION IN OIL CASE

Will Employ Special Counsel In Prosecution

GUILTY TO BE PUNISHED

Rights Of People To Be Protected, President Says

WASHINGTON — (Associated Press)—President Coolidge has decided to employ special counsel drawn from both the Republican and Democratic parties to proceed with court action as a result of evidence adduce dat the senate committee hearings on the leasing of naval oil reserves.

In a statement issued at midnight, the president declared that "counsel will be instructed to prosecute these cases in the courts so that if there is any guilt it will be punished; if there is any civil liability it will be enforced; if there is any fraud it will be revealed; and if there are any contracts which are illegal they will be cancelled."

The president determined upon this course after being advised by the department of justice that it was in accordance with precedents. Explaining that the justice department had been observing the evidence adduced at the senate committee, the executive in his statement asserted that "every law will be enforced and every right of the people and the government will be protected."

White house officials in making public the statement said that the special counsel would be appointed just as soon as selections could be made.

PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT

The formal announcement follows:

"It is not for the president to determine criminal guilt or render judgment in such causes. That is the function of the courts. It is not for him to prejudge. I shall do neither. But when facts are revealed to me that require action for the purpose of insuring the enforcement of either civil or criminal liability, such action will be taken. That is the province of the executive.

"Acting under my direction, the department of justice has been observing the course of the evidence which has been revealed at the hearings conducted by the senatorial committee investigating certain oil leases made on naval reserves, which I believe warrants action for the purpose of enforcing the law and protecting the rights of the public. This is confirmed by reports made to me by the committee. If there has been any crime it must be prosecuted. If there has been any property of the United States illegally transferred or leased it must be recovered

"I feel the public is entitled to know that in the conduct of such actions no one is shielded for any party, political or other reasons. As I understand men are involved who belong to both political parties and having been advised by the department of justice that it is in accord with former precedents, I propose to employ special counsel of high rank drawn from both political parties to bring such actions for the enforcement of the law. Counsel will

Death Rate Of Babies Slumps To Record Low

Allen-co Made 50 Per Cent Safer for Infants In Three Years

Allen-co's infant mortality rate is only one-half of the rate for 1920, according to a statement made Saturday by Dr. J. J. Sutter, county health commissioner. In 1920 it was 80 per cent and last year it was something over 40 per cent.

Vital statistics for Allen-co have been partly completed for the year 1923, and show that 236 girls and 231 boys were born during the last year. Of these, 10 died before the age of one month and ten died between one month and one year.

The low rate now attained is due, Sutter avers, to the work carried on by Mrs. Anna May Fechter, county health nurse, among the mothers of the district. The rate would have been even lower, Sutter thinks but that ten of the infants died before the nurse was notified of their birth. More than 90 per cent of the babies were visited by the nurse.

Each year 250,000 babies under one year of age die in the United States Most of these deaths are preventable, it is stated if the mother has proper instruction and care.

All physicians in Allen-co are being asked to cooperate with Health Commissioner Sutter, in reporting all cases of expectant mothers, who may be visited by the nurse or have literature sent to her on the care of the baby.

ACTIVITIES OF BROKER HALTED

Buffalo Firm With 1,000 Allen-co Investors on Its "Sucker List" Is Enjoined by District Attorney, Board Of Commerce Is Informed

Approximately 1,000 Allen-co investors were on the mailing list of the firm of Mark Harris, Buffalo broker, closed Thursday on a restraining order issued to the deputy district attorney, according to information on file at the office of James E. Morton, manager of the Board of Commerce.

Harris operated an extensive brokerage business for more than 20 years. His mailing list contained the names of 18,000 persons residing in all parts of the United States and Canada.

Investigation of the company's operations in Lima was started six months ago. One member of the Board of Commerce forwarded his name and was put on the firm's mailing list. Each week the weekly stock market bulletin edited by Mark Harris was forwarded to him along with literature on various issues floated by the company.

The local organization also cooperated with the national vigilance committee in an effort to detect evasion of the state bond selling laws and fraudulent use of the mails.

Thursday the district attorney's office closed down on Harris and an injunction was issued restraining him from further operations. He gained nation-wide prominence on his 21-payment plan of listed stocks

Harris admitted floating bond issues that never existed, it is claimed He played the market short for finaucial gains and in very few instances did the investors benefit from his operations in oil, gold and silver deals, it was stated.

Harris failed to purchase securities, using his investors' money for manipulation of the market when at below par, his attorney is alleged to have said in a statement to the deputy district attorney.

None of the 1,000 Allen-co investors on the mailing list are believed to have suffered from Harris' activities in this section, but in other cities near Lima he is said to have reaped a harvest.

No formal charges have been filed against Harris but postal authorities are investigating his activities to determine if he fraudulently used the mails. His alleged admission that he operated a bucket-shop will form the basis of prosecution

BOND ISSUE IS SOLD TO FINISH JOB

TO RELET WORK

Intercepting Sewer Contract Is Now Ready for Reletting

Decision to start suit against the Royal Indemnity Co. of New York, to collect on the $170,000 indemnity policy issued to cover the construction of the intercepting sewer system by the Fred R. Jones Co. has been unofficially reached by city officials.

This was learned Saturday when C. A. Bingham announced that some move will be made within a short time to hold the bonding company accountable for the failure of the contractors to complete the job.

Confirmation of the sale of the $140,000 bond issue to make possible the completion of the job by the city and for the financing of the Metcalf-st overhead is expected at the meeting of the city commission Monday night.

$5,734 PREMIUM

Well, Roth, Irving Co., of Cincinnati, have been awarded the bond issue, they having offered a premium of $5,734 as compared to that of $5,384 offered by the W. L. Slayton Co., of Toledo.

Premium on the $100,000 sewer issue is $4,310 and on the $40,000 overhead bonds, $1,424, City Auditor C. H. Churchill announced Saturday.

Bids for the completion of the job will be received by the city and the work will be financed by the $100,000 received from the sale of bonds and $150,000 remaining in the original intercepting sewer fund. This will give the city $250,000 for the work.

Before bids are received the city probably will file claims against the indemnity company to reimburse the city for loss due to Jones defaulting on his contract.

This is the only course of procedure left to the city, according to Manager Bingham, who claims the city is dangerously near its sewer bonding limit and the money will, if received, adequately provide for the 1924 sewerage program.

The Jones sewer contract muddle has been the center of controversy for months since the company defaulted after the city ignored charges made by the construction company as follows:

That plans and specifications prepared by the city for the contract were erroneous.

That the city made improper payments in violation to the terms of the indemnity policy.

That additional expense was necessary to the rock formation and failure of the plans to specify a parallel sewer which flooded the new sewer trench.

WAGE CLAIMS

Working men's claims of $9,000 for wages were met by H. E. Pendleton of the Royal Bonding Co. Claims of approximately $16,000 for material are still outstanding, it is asserted.

Jones appealed to commissioners for $24,000 on supplemental contracts and upon being turned down he defaulted on the job. Bills contracted by Jones are received every week by Manager Bingham and are turned over to the bonding company for adjustment

The Jones project is one of the most important sewerage disposal arteries in the $3,000,000 sewer program and its early completion is urged by city officials. Bids are to be received as soon as possible, according to officials.

BLOCK CONTAINING WIFE'S HEAD USED AS PORCH PILLAR

AURORA, Ill—(Associated Press) —Cast in a block of concrete the heads of Mrs. Lina Lincoln and Byron Shoup, her brother, were found Saturday in a dump heap here by the authorities working under the direction of Warren J. Lincoln, eccentric lawyer and horticulturist, who is accused of their murder.

Making his fourteenth statement and his fifth confession in as many days, Lincoln Saturday told his questioners that he had shot both his wife and her brother, hacked their bodies to bits and buried the pieces, sealed their heads in a block of concrete which he used for a time as a support under his porch and threw in the city dump.

Then the lawyer-horticulturist calmly led the authorities to the dump, pointing out a spot and told them to dig, giving them hints when they were getting "warm." When the concrete block was uncovered, Lincoln swooned.

BODIES NOT BURIED

A coroner's jury was summoned and the heads of both Mrs. Lincoln and Shoup were positively identified by relatives. Lincoln, who appeared before the jury, was asked a few preliminary questions and the jury then adjourned subject to call, immediately after his appearance before the jury, Lincoln told Charles Abbott, state's attorney, that he had not buried the dismembered pieces of his victims, as he said Saturday morning, but had burned them in the furnace of his greenhouse. He said he did not burn the heads because he was afraid the teeth would not be destroyed.

Lincoln's latest confession, the first supported by evidence, left him unnerved but Saturday night the authorities still were questioning him in an effort to learn any new details of the gruesome crimes he now admits

As soon as the concrete block, 24 inches long, 18 inches wide and a foot thick had been uncovered, excited officials hurried with it to the Aurora police station where it was pounded to pieces with sledge hammers until the two heads were revealed. One of them, that which the authorities are confident is the skull of Mrs. Lincoln, was without hair and was unrecognizable. The other, altho badly decomposed, was identified by means of red hair and the shape of the head as that of Shoup

Lincoln has been questioned every day since his arrest in Chicago two weeks ago. First he said he killed his wife after Mrs. Lincoln had shot her brother, and threaten her husband. Then Lincoln made other statements at variance with his con-

URGES TAX SLASH FOR UTILITIES

Judge Suggests Ohio Companies Get 40 Per Cent Cut

PROBE UNDERVALUATION

Move Is Unpopular With 31 County Prosecutors

COLUMBUS—(Associated Press)—Prosecuting attorneys representing Ohio counties affected by recent suits filed by public utility corporations who charge inequalities in the methods of valuation for taxation purposes were urged to make compromise agreements Saturday by Federal Judge John F. Sater, at a meeting held in the federal court room.

The meeting was called to consider a proposition made by the utility corporations that the entire matter be compromised on a 60 per cent basis; that is that the utilities would pay taxes upon 60 per cent of their valuations as fixed by the state tax commission. This was the figure set in the case of the Dayton Street Railway Co., following which a number of similar suits were filed.

Because many of the prosecuting attorneys pleaded a lack of familiarity with the subject, Judge Sater adjourned the meeting until March 1 when steps will be taken to bring to trial all cases not compromised.

Judge Sater served notice that on account of the public importance of the question all delays will be minimized.

"These cases affect every school district and every corporation of the state and are of very great public importance," the judge said. "If these subdivisions are entitled to this money they should have it to meet their obligations and if there is to be any pruning done it should be determined quickly so the subdivisions can adjust themselves to the situation."

CHARGE UNDERVALUATION

Judge Sater said that a master will be appointed immediately after the next meeting to go to the counties concerned and take evidence to determine the truth of the charge made by the corporations that private property is on the tax duplicate at an average of about 60 per cent of its true value. He said that if possible an arrangement will be made to make one hearing in each county to determine the valuation to be accepted in settling all suits.

Fifty-three counties stand to lose large sums now received from taxation if the pleas of the corporations are granted on a basis similar to the one in the Dayton case, it was said. Wilbur Benoy, representing the attorney general sent notices of the proposed compromise to all of the counties receiving 31 answers, 20 counties favoring the compromise and 11 rejecting it. Following the meeting most of those which had accepted withdrew from the agreement.

The proposition of reappraisal was mentioned but once during the conference, J. F. Henderson, prosecuting attorney of Ashland-co, declared that a reappraisal is necessary.

32 ARE DEAD IN ILLINOIS BLAST

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill.—(Associated Press)—The number of dead in the explosion at East mine of the Crerar-Clinch Co., Friday is 32. It was announced late Saturday after a thore inspection of the colliery. A previous report that six men still were in the mine was found to be incorrect.

In addition to the dead, eight injured still are in the hospital. Two of them are believed to be fatally hurt.

With the death list definitely ascertained, local interest in the disaster turned to the investigations begun by a joint board of Illinois mine officials, the coroner and representatives of the company.

Altho no announcements were made after today's inquiry it was believed unofficially the explosion resulted from spontaneous combustion of coal dust followed by the deadly black damp.

The last of the dead were taken from the mine this afternoon. Two of the bodies were burned beyond recognition. Company officials this afternoon began checking over the names of the men who were in the mine at the time of the explosion.

Lakeview Woman Reports Loss Of Money And Rings

Mrs. Anna K. Weise, Lakeview resident, is out $550 as the result of a visit to Lima Saturday.

The deficit incurred by Mrs. Weise consists of the loss of jewelry worth $500 and cash to the amount of $50, according to the itemized statement given the Lima police department.

Whether Mrs. Weise was the victim of a theft or whether she just lost her valuables is a question. All she knows is that she lost her handbag containing the cash and jewelry, the latter consisting of eight rings.

She had been about the streets of Lima shopping for several hours, she had been in and out of several places, probably in several small crowds before she discovered the bag was missing.

While not giving up hope that an honest finder may return the bag, police fear Mrs. Weise may have been victimized by a thief who took advantage of the jostling of a crowd to snatch the bag from her.

STORY OF CRIMES

Early Saturday Frank Michels, chief of police, confronted him. "Why don't you tell the truth, Warren? Think of your old mother," he said.

"Oh, all right, you've been a good fellow. I'll tell you the truth," Lincoln replied and calmly proceeded to relate the story of the crimes.

Lincoln said he had had violent quarrels with his wife and her brother, and decided to shoot them when he claimed he discovered an unnatural liason between them. This discovery was made January 10, 1923, he said.

"I shot them both," he told Chief Michels. "I became enraged and shot Byron with a pistol. Then I went to the greenhouse and got a rifle. I came back drew aim on Lina and fired."

This, he said was late in the day and he kept the bodies in the house that night. Next day he carried both bodies to the basement and buried them under a coal pile. A few days later he dismembered them and buried the pieces. Then he said he cast a concrete block and placed the heads of his victims in it after wrapping them in burlap, make it appear as a porch support a corner of a sleeping porch to make it ppe as a porch support. He stayed at the house and exactly two months later, on March 10, filed a divorce suit against his wife. About the same time he filed a $10,000 damage suit against Shoup at Lincoln, Ill., charging alienation of his wife's affections.

With the bodies of his victims disposed of and the suits against them filed, Lincoln then prepared his next step his disappearance with the evidence left behind that he had been murdered by his own victims.

On April 20 the eccentric lawyer vanished leaving behind garments which later he soaked in chicken blood, some of his wife's blood soaked clothing, a bloodstained Indian club and a house disarranged as by a terrific struggle.

The authorities started a search for Shoup and Mrs. Lina Lincoln in the belief that they had slain Lincoln and disposed of the body. The search was still in progress when the lawyer made his reappearance June 10. He declared he had been kidnapped by a hand led by his wife and her brother.

Apparently there was no cause to doubt his statement and Lincoln returned to his Aurora home. Then he told Chief Michels, the concrete block worried him so he took it to the city dump and buried it. Shortly thereafter Lincoln again disappeared, but the authorities had been quietly checking up on his earlier statements and became more suspicious when he wrote letters to relatives in his wife's name asking for money. Lack of funds, he had explained induced him to come back to Aurora after his first disappearance.

Two weeks ago he was arrested in Chicago, brought here he startled the authorities by admitting he had killed his wife. He maintained he had killed her after she had shot her brother and had threatened him. Lincoln said he hacked the bodies to pieces and burned them in his green house furnace. Then day after day he changed or retraced parts of his confession until Saturday he made the statement that resulted in finding the skulls.

When he finished the statement this morning the authorities stood aghast, unbelieving. Then Lincoln began to help in the search. They hurried to the spot Lincoln indicated and the lawyer horticulturist stood in the bitter cold and directed the digging.

"Now you're getting warm," he told them and a few minutes later picks and shovels struck the heavy block of concrete. Lincoln fainted as it was brought to view and was hurried back to the jail where after a rest questioning was resumed. Later he was taken before the coroner's jury.

Officials tonight after examining the skulls said they had already found one discrepancy in Lincoln's newest confession. In it he told that both his victims had been shot thru the head.

Officials said there was no trace of a bullet wound on either skull and said that neither skull showed any signs of being crushed. Lincoln having said in another confession that he had struck his wife over the head with a poker.

Friendship Gets Local Man Into Hands Of Police

Thompson fled the city with a $50 vacuum cleaner owned by the Air-Way Cleaner Co., according to H. L. Good, manager of the S. Elizabeth-st branch.

A woman friend was questioned and her information resulted in Thompson's arrest and disclosure that he is married and the father of two children, according to police, who will return him to Lima to face the petit larceny count.

under the shadow of the Newberry scandal, and the Daugherty scandal. Others followed in quick succession, including the Bureau of Engraving scandal, the Goldstein scandal, the ship subsidy and ship sales scandal, the Veterans Bureau scandal, the sugar profiteering scandal, the Naval Oil Reserve scandal (including Teapot Dome) the reclamation service scandal, the income tax bureau scandal, the packers and stock yards scandal, the Tolbert scandal, the Slemp scandal and a long list of others well-known with one new brewing in the tariff commission where three commissioners ought to be disqualified from acting by reason of present or past affiliation with interests affected by their decision. There is scarcely a department of the government under the administration that is not discredited by its record and many bureaus not already scandalized are under suspicion.

"Since this crowd of reactionaries have been in control of the government federal officials at Washington have been subservient to the will that Senator Caraway declared that so long as Attorney General Daugherty sits at the helm of the department of justice, they may sell the Whitehouse and be immune from any prosecution in the federal courts. None of the multiplicity of scandals has been exposed by reactionary Republicans. Not a detail of the infamous Teapot Dome scandal would ever have been known except for the exposures made by Democrats in the face of reactionary Republican obstruction."

POLICE WAGE WAR ON ICY WALKS

Seven Persons And Firms Are Summoned Into Court

Seven persons or firms have been summoned by police to appear before Judge Neil R. Poling Monday and explain why snow and ice have not been removed from sidewalks on property owned or controlled by them. They are:

Star Clothing Co., 17 Public Square.

N. Edelman, junk dealer, at 336 S. Central-av.

Lydia Cannon, 342 S. Central-av.

Charles Winning, 340 S. Central-av.

P. O. Bashore, restaurant owner, Market st. and Central-av.

Katherine Welson, 331 S. Central-av.

City ordinances provide that all snow be cleared off the sidewalks within four hours after the snow fall ends. The penalty for failure to comply with the law is a fine from $5 to $50.

Property owners may be called later, police said.

Burglars? Nope, Just A Few Rats

When is a burglar not a burglar? When it's a rat.

So say policemen who answered a hurry call to the William Potter grocery store at 975 St. Johns-av when Glen Brown, watchman, thought he heard a robber entering thru the storeroom.

Investigation by detectives showed that every door and window was securely barricaded and that there was no possibility that the sounds heard were those of a burglar.

"Rats," said the policemen. And that's the way it went on the books.

MISTAKE ON POLICE RECORD IS CORRECTED

Thru an error on the police records, a mistake was made yesterday in the announcement of the name of the person who filed a complaint with police concerning a small boy who was said to have been sent out late at night by his father to sell seeds.

Chief Lanker yesterday afternoon investigated the matter and said that Mrs. J. F. Marvin, 746 N. West-st, filed the complaint and not Mrs. Frank Hoberhouer as originally appeared on police records.

GAS BURNERS ARE ADJUSTED

Company Swamped With Calls, Trains Special Crew

By employing 70 men, most of whom were trained especially for the work in a school the company opened, practically all gas burning appliances in the city have been adjusted to use the mixed gas the local company has been forced to adopt to keep up the supply, it was announced last night.

Officials of the company several days ago announced that adjustment of burners would be made by the company free of charge where applications were made for this service. Advertisements in newspapers to that effect were published and the gas office was swamped with calls. The result was that a small army of men had to be hired to augment the regular service force.

The gas supply even with the abnormal temperature of the last week has been kept up to a point where every consumer had an adequate amount for ordinary needs. This was possible, even tho practically no natural gas was received from the Medina field, by the mixture of artificial gas with what was received from the field. The company prepared for this contingency last summer and fall by spending $150,000 for modern equipment so that a satisfactory mixture at an even pressure and B. T. U. standard might be used when the supply of natural gas dwindled, as it has every winter for the last several years.

This is the first winter in a number of years that householders were able to do their cooking and use small heaters regularly without interruption.

WILL PROSECUTE OIL CASES

be instructed to prosecute these cases in the courts so that if there is any guilt it will be punished, if there is any civil liability it will be enforced; if there is any fraud it will be revealed; and if there are any contracts which are illegal they will be cancelled. Every law will be enforced and every right of the people and the government will be protected."

ACTION PLANNED BY DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON — (Associated Press)—An offer to have reconveyed to the government the rich naval oil reserve in California and other oil contracts entered into by the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co., after E. L. Doheny had loaned Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, $100,000 on his personal note, was submitted Saturday to the senate oil committee by Gavin McNab, counsel for Doheny.

The offer carries a single stipulation—that the company be reimbursed for expenditure made in the Pearl Harbor government oil reserve developments and willingness is expressed that payment be made in oil from offset wells sunk in the California reserve at the request of the government to prevent drainage of that field. These wells then would be surrendered.

Altho this offer is a modification of the original proposal for reconveyance should a board of experts determine that the contracts were not wise, advantageous and the best that the government could have made, the committee decided to transmit it to the senate Monday without recommendation. In the committee discussion objection was raised that the offer had not been signed by Doheny, but by his counsel. Some senators expressed doubt of the wisdom of passing upon the proposal in that form.

DEMOCRATS ACT

Independent of the Doheny offer, Democratic leaders reached an agreement Saturday whereby a substitute for the Caraway Teapot Dome lease cancellation resolution will be offered in the senate Monday with a view to its speedy adoption, probably on that day. It will be in the same general form as a resolution offered in the house by Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, after a conference with Senators Walsh, Democrat, Montana, who has had the lead in the prosecution of the oil inquiry, and Caraway.

The resolution would "authorize and request" the president to institute immediately legal proceedings looking to annulment of the Teapot Dome, Wyoming, reserve lease to the Sinclair interests; to enjoin further extraction of oil from the reserve and to "employ special counsel who shall have charge of the prosecution of such litigation, anything in the statutes touching the powers of the attorney general or the department of justice to the contrary notwithstanding."

A similar resolution with respect to the California naval reserve lease to the Doheny interests was offered by Representative Garrett, but some members of the senate committee said such a resolution would be withheld by the senate until there had been discussion of the Doheny offer. There was intimation, however, that unless the Doheny proposal was submitted in writing over the signature of Doheny himself the resolution might be pressed at a later time.

LIMA INFANTRY UNITS TO GO TO CAMP PERRY DURING LAST OF JULY

Lima infantry units will entrain at Camp Perry the last week in July and the first week in August for the annual field maneuvers of 15 days.

Extensive training with close and extended order drills and range practice alternated with interesting sidelights of camp life comprise the eight hour day of training for civilians.

Four hours in the morning are devoted to lectures on military matters, and close and extended order drills. These periods, which might prove monotonous for those just fresh from the factory or office, are broken with 10 minute rest periods each hour.

The last several mornings of the encampment are given over to demonstrations by the different companies on specialized military maneuvers that have been assigned to them.

The afternoons are devoted to work on the rifle and pistol ranges. During these periods the boys are instructed in the care and use of the rifle, the pistol, and the automatic rifle. Every effort is made to see that each man is fully instructed in the use of his particular firearm before going on the range, so as to fully insure his own safety, and the safety of his buddies on the line.

There has not been a serious accident on the range at Camp Perry in the last four years, notwithstanding the fact that every year thousands of new men who had never before handled an army rifle are taught the use of this important firearm in a practical way.

SUITS WILL STAND IN MOHLER CASE

Commitment To Asylum Not To Result In Withdrawal

Damage suits filed by the Gratz family and the Mennonite Mutual Aid society against the estate of William Mohler, confessed slayer and arsonist, will be pushed despite the verdict of the jury declaring him insane, it was learned Saturday.

"No difference in the status of the cases will be made by the outcome in the sanity hearing," R. S. Steiner, attorney who filed the actions asserted. "Nothing has been done toward settling the suits, and they will be tried."

Mohler was committed to Lima State hospital Saturday by Judge Fred C. Becker. It was ordered that the man be confined within the walls of the institution until "reason is restored."

Mohler will be entered formally as a patient in the hospital Monday, Sheriff Crosson declared Saturday night.

Little or no interest was evidenced in the proceedings by Mohler Saturday. He made no comment on the order while in court.

Once outside the court room he asked Sheriff Crosson what the order meant.

"You are to go to the state hospital," he was informed.

Committment papers will be made out Monday, and Mohler will be admitted to the asylum.

The application for the appointment of a guardian for Mohler was not made in probate court Saturday. Dan Tripplehorn, counsel for the accused, declared he might not file the application for several days.

CANDLE USED TO THAW PIPES IS FIRE CAUSE

Fire damage estimated at $150 was caused at 3:20 p. m. Saturday at the home of H. Boggs, 616 N. Metcalf-st, when a candle ignited the beams while being used to thaw out frozen water pipes.

Flames spread between joists to the second floor and momentarily assumed threatening proportions, but were quickly extinguished by prompt work of firemen who tore out a small section of the sidewall to get to the flames.

BUSINESS HOUSES NOT EXEMPTED

Merchants Must Clean Walks, Bingham Tells Police

Clean the snow off your walks face prosecution was the edict [illegible] day of City Manager C. A. Bingham in the wake of a flood of complaints from citizens who charged that merchants are exempted.

Letters and telephone calls flooded at the city manager's office [illegible] to the effect that police are using their activities against residential property owners and not bothering business men in the uptown district.

This is a misconception, Bingham said, as police first started [illegible] the business section and notified proprietors to clean off the walks.

Then they visited resident districts and warned property owners violating the city ordinance.

Names of all violators were taken and filed at headquarters for information.

Saturday afternoon police started out again on orders of Bingham to order all violators into court who previously had been warned but had disregarded the warning.

"We are giving all a square deal," Bingham said. "To avoid the recurrance of wholesale arrests in 1922 and 1923, officers were instructed to first warn violators. Their instructions were to visit merchants and residential districts.

"This was done but from complaints received Saturday the feeling is that merchants are not included in the order. There is no distinction. I have ordered officers to be prepared with court summons and those who fail to remove the snow and ice will be haled into court."

FIRE PROOF ROOFS SOUGHT

Underwriters' Laboratories on Hunt for Materials

Three Plants Employing 200 Engineers Kept Busy

NEW YORK—(Associated Press)—Fire prevention is the subject which perhaps more than any other interests the Underwriters' Laboratories, with work shops in Chicago, New York and San Francisco where tests to secure dependable data on all kinds of fire resisting materials constantly are being made.

The recent experience of the city of Berkeley, California, with a destructive fire drew attention again to fire resistive roofs. By means of specially designed furnaces roofing materials were once more subjected to the same exposure to fire and wind that they would meet in actual emergency, and the tests showed that there need never be such a thing as a force fire.

BUSY YEAR

The laboratories, operated for service under the auspices of the insurance companies, headed by the National Board of Fire Underwriters have had a busy year. Originally they consisted of two men working in one room. They now have three large plant and employ nearly 200 engineers.

Many facts of vital importance have been brought out in the tests of fire doors fire windows and shutters and building materials used in walls, floors and partitions. These are compelled to withstand flames at a temperature up to 1700 degrees for persons varying from 45 minutes to an hour, and in some cases even longer. Safes are heated to 1700 degrees for an hour. They are hoisted 30 feet and dropped on a pile of brick, reheated for another hour, and then opened must show no damage to their contents.

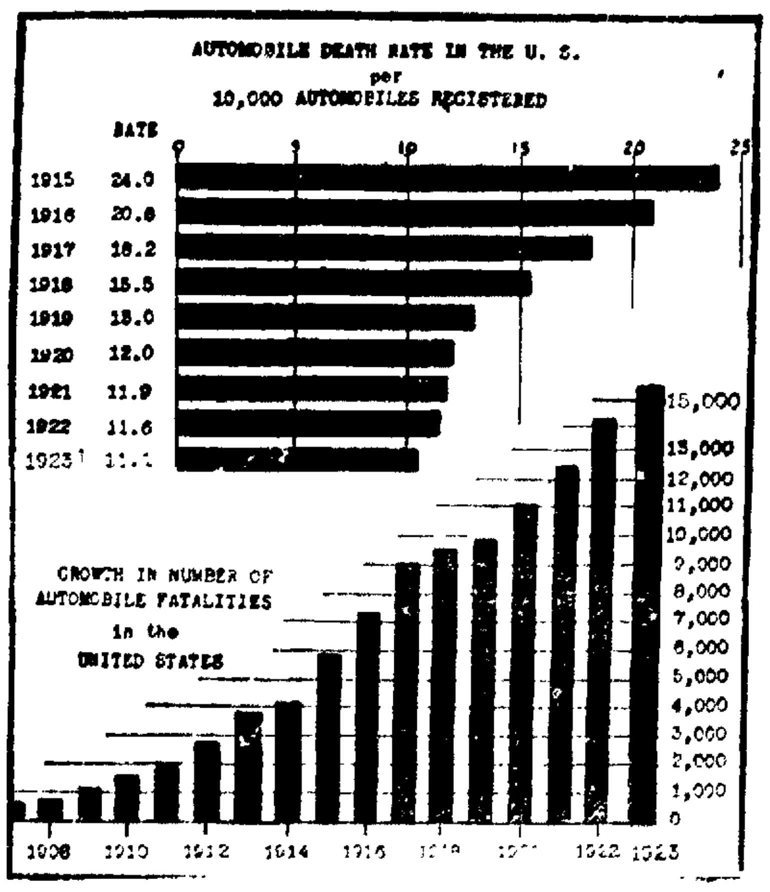

NOTABLE INCREASE

There has been a notable increase in the number and variety of electrical apparatus submitted to the laboratories, and the small percentage of electrical fires as compared with those from all other causes, is said according to the annual report of the association, to be largely due to Underwriters' laboratories' inspection and test.

In the automotive field the laboratories' tests have included gasoline tanks, fuel feed systems, carburetors, gauges, generators, starting motors, ignition systems, mufflers, exhaust heaters, etc. With the cooperation of the principal automobile manufacturers, research work is being carried on with a view to developing certain new standards of design and equipment.

The aim of the laboratories is to establish a minimum standard of safe practice in the case of each device or material examined. The result of their investigations is public property.

TOLL BLAMED ON UNFIT DRIVERS

Causes of Increase in Motor Accidents Discussed

CHICAGO — (Special) —Drive the "Motor Moron" from the streets!

This is the remedy Fred M. Rossland, chief of the National Safety Council's public safety division would apply toward making the highways safe. It supplements the National Safety Council's estimate, just announced, that 15,000 persons were killed in auto accidents in 1923—1000 more than were killed in 1922.

"Enforcement of traffic laws already on the books is more important than writing new ones," says Rossland. Here are some ideas, tho, which might help in a new code:

"Most important of all, eliminate unfit driver. Delaware requires a test of all prospective drivers, to determine mechanical skill and coordination of hand, eye and nerve. Drivers without certificates of fitness are arrested.

"Make 10 miles an hour maximum speed for cars turning street corners. Make 15 miles the limit in downtown sections and 20 miles the absolute maximum in a city.

"On busy corners where traffic police are required, compel pedestrains to observe the same signals as motorists and cross only with motor traffic.

"Create wider highways and more of them, correcting blind corners before it is necessary to prohibit motor vehicles from certain streets in many cities."

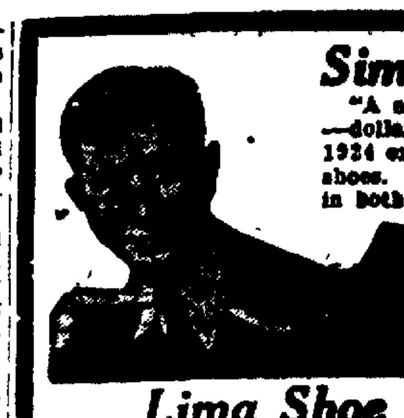

The "fool woman driver" and children are far more careful than are men, according to the Safety Council accident survey. During 18 months' study in Los Angeles, women drivers figured in only 4 per cent of the accidents, while the number of children killed decreased.

"Safety instruction in the schools of 300 cities has cut down playing in the streets—and the 1924 jaywalkers are mainly grown persons" declares William H. Cameron, managing director of the National Safety Council. "If the parents took the same care children now do, there would be far greater curbing of the accident rate."

WEEK'S BUILDING FEATURE IS FAUROT SCHOOL PERMIT

Building activities during the week took a decided spurt and totaled $176,105, due mainly to the issuance of a $120,000 permit to the board of education thru the Green and Sawyer Construction Co. for Faurot school.

Slump in residential building is seen, but with the opening of the weather a steady increase is predicted by real estate dealers. During this month only three permits have been issued for erection of new dwellings, and three permits for remodeling of dwellings.

Simmons Says—

"A shoe repaired in time will save ... —dollars. Let us help you cut down ... 1924 expenses by Re-building those worn ... shoes. You'll be astonished at the difference in both savings and appearance.

Firm, Plump Flesh!

MANY are the eyes that are turned to gaze with keen admiration on the well developed, healthy girl no matter where she may be—on the rapidly moving thoroughfare or gliding gracefully over the dance floor.

All eyes turn because we all appreciate the girl with the figure so firm and plump—the girl with radiantly red cheeks, cheeks that carry a touch of roses from nature's own garden—the girl with the sparkling eyes, keen and sharp—the girl with buoyancy and the swing of youth.

Not necessarily an out of doors girl. Just a girl with ever increasing blood cells. Just a girl filled with the vim and vigor of youth.

S. S. S., since 1826, has stood for increased blood cells. S. S. S. means restored strength—rekindled vitality—added energy. Take S. S. S. and watch the bloom of youth return to your cheeks. Watch that flabby, ill nourished flesh fade away before flesh that is firm and plump. Red blood cells will do it and S. S. S. will build them. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

CITY SEEKS SPEED IN BUYING PUMP

Commission Monday Votes On $15,000 Issue Of Bonds

MORE EQUIPMENT WANTED

Department Survey Cited As Showing Many Needs

Legal technicalities temporarily blocking purchase of a modern pumper for Lima fire department will be removed Monday night with passage by commissioners of a resolution authorizing a $15,000 bond issue for such purpose.

Feb. 9 has been set by City Manager C. A. Bingham as the date for the opening of bids and word of the contemplated purchase has been forwarded to apparatus manufacturers to expediate any unnecessary delay.

Promptness of delivery will figure in awarding the contract, it was intimated by Bingham and city commissioners who declare it is criminal neglect to attempt to efficiently battle fires in a city of 60,000 population with antiquated fire fighting equipment.

VOTE UNANIMOUS

Commissioners were unanimous last Monday in their approval of Bingham's recommendation for a thousand gallons-a-minute pumper.

Commissioner Ellis Jones said the disastrous Leist block fire was a warning to the city and action should not be postponed.

"It is better to be prepared than to regret," Commissioner Harold Cunningham said.

"A modern pumper will replace the old steamer and give service equal to the three pumpers now used," Commissioner Earl Rohn declared in urging the scrapping of the old steam pumper.

"We need new fire fighting equipment and I say get it," Commissioner Rankin asserted, and Mayor Moyer announced Saturday that time is the paramount question now as a disastrous fire is liable to sweep the city at any time.

SURVEY MADE

Survey of equipment in Lima fire department shows some startling facts in support of the attitude taken by Manager Bingham and city commissioners.

Three pumpers, three chemical wagons and a hose truck comprise the fire fighting apparatus.

Pumpers were purchased seven years ago and have a pumping capacity of 350 gallons a minute each or 50 gallons greater for the three than the new pumper to be purchased.

The three chemical trucks carry a total of 120 gallons of chemicals and a maximum of 1250 feet of hose.

At least 5,000 more feet of hose is needed to provide a change in event of a series of fires in winter weather when the hose freezes, according to Assistant Fire Chief C. V. Eyster.

POLICY DEPLORED

In a statement Saturday night, Eyster deplored the policy of saving in the fire department. "The E. Spring-st fire," he said, "was a Godsend and maybe the people of Lima will realize what adequate fire protection means."

Eyster recommends the purchase of at least 5,000 feet of hose and purchase of modern fire fighting apparatus.

He stated that the department would be almost powerless in combatting a fire in some of the city's high buildings, claiming that the 350 gallon pumpers would not have sufficient force to propel the water to the top of the burning structure.

The aerial ladders are 75 feet in length, or within 10 feet of the greatest length of ladders made. In event of a fire in the highest building in the city persons trapped could be saved but the department would be almost powerless in fighting the blaze.

Eyster stated that had the department been equipped with modern apparatus last Monday morning the Leist block fire would have been extinguished within one hour and at only about one-third of the damage.

TWO DIVORCES GRANTED; ALIMONY ALLOWED WOMAN

Affections alleged to have been held by James King for another woman won a decree for Mrs. Jennie King and the right to resume her former name, Jennie Jones, in common pleas court Saturday.

Testimony given by Mrs. King tended to show that the defendant failed to provide for her. She also told that following her marriage she learned of another wife, who is alleged to have borne her husband's affections.

Temporary alimony of $40 to be paid in two installments was allowed Mrs. Clara Rouse, wife of H. E. Rouse, at a hearing in common pleas court Saturday.

COMMITTEE ADVANCES STEP ON TAX MEASURE

WASHINGTON. — The house ways and means committee advanced a step nearer the income tax rates of the revenue bill Saturday with disposition in part of the community property tax section of the pending measure but two groups of Republicans failed at the meeting to unite their forces for the impending income rates fight.

Secretary Mellon's recommendation to prohibit husbands and wives dividing family incomes for purposes of filing separate tax returns as allowed in eight states, was rejected in committee on a bipartisan vote.

Another vote, however, will be taken Monday on a proposal of chairman Green to prohibit such divisions of incomes when received alone from wages and salaries. Secretary Mellon estimated adoption of this section would net $8,000,000 additional revenue.

SKATERS FROLIC AT FAUROT PARK

Zero weather failed to dim the spirits of outdoor enthusiasts and Saturday afternoon Faurot park skating pond was dotted with scores of warm clad skaters.

Boys and girls alike enjoyed the sport during the day and Saturday night many older persons skated by light from electric lights erected by the city.

Grove's Mayor Whistles Way Thru Trouble

COLUMBUS GROVE—Columbus Grove has a whistling mayor. He whistled himself into office at the November election.

He is George Luce, less than 50, butcher and proprietor of a meatmarket and grocery, S. High-st.

No matter if it's early in the morning, at noon or setting of the sun, wherever George Luce is, there is bound to come forth the cheerie song in the form of a whistle.

Sometimes it is a church hymn—sometimes it is a jazz selection. Citizens catch up the notes of the tune and they, too, go on their daily routine of work with a song.

Luce whistled so much and so often that a little girl in Columbus Grove who followed in his wake, learned to whistle so well she captured a prize at a social for her ability.

Luce operates the union delivery from his store. Other merchants send around the purchases ordered by customers with him. Frequently he takes these deliveries himself.

Luce is a favorite with children. They look for him daily as he makes his trips over the city with deliveries.

"All our family is going to vote for you for mayor," many a little kiddie told him when he was a candidate for re-election in November.

When the votes were counted, it looked as if the children's prediction had come true, for Luce received 221 more votes than did his opponent, who received less than [illegible]. Luce is a Republican.

In dealing out justice, Luce says, he is guided only by the spirit of the golden rule. During his regime, the city jail has been conspicuous for its absence of prisoners and the town is one of the most peaceable and law abiding in the state, other village officials declare.

SEWER PROPOSAL GETS APPROVAL

District Storm and Sanitary Project Goes Forward

COUNTY BOARD GIVES O. K.

Project to Be Paid for From Taxes on Property

Plans of realtors for the construction of Allen-co's first sanitary and storm sewer district west of the city were approved Saturday by the county commissioners.

Commissioners spent Friday in Montgomery-co acquainting themselves first hand with the organization and operation of four districts outside Dayton city limits.

The plans call for the construction of $50,000 worth of sewers in Westwood and other real estate additions west of Lima, the cost to be assessed against the property benefited.

The county will sell bonds to finance the project, and will let the contracts for the work. The bonds will be retired by creation of a sinking fund out of taxes collected off the property. No money actually will be spent out of county funds on the work.

EMPTY INTO DUG RUN

Storm waters will be carried off thru sewers running up thru the Baxter farm and emptying into Dug run, commissioners said.

The sanitary sewers will be hooked up to the city sewers. Water mains also will be laid to serve homes in the district.

Montgomery-co commissioners, according to Commissioner John Thompson, are highly enthusiastic concerning the four districts in their county. They declared that construction of homes in the districts has added $5,000,000 to the tax duplicate, and eventually will raise the amount to $10,000,000.

The proposed district will be situated in American-tp and eventually will be annexed to the city.

SENTINEL DISSOLUTION DECREE EXPECTED FRIDAY

OTTAWA—A decision in the case of dissolution of the Putnam-co Sentinel will be given by Judge H. W. Blachly, of Van Wert, it is expected, when he comes here next Friday to hold court.

Hearing was held some weeks ago. A. P. Sandles and John T. Maidlow, stock holders, are seeking dissolution of the company on the grounds the paper, under present management, is not a paying proposition.

Sandles and Maidlow ask that a receiver be appointed to operate the paper.

George Fritz, veteran attorney appointed as referee to hear the testimony, discussed the petition of Sandles and Maidlow. The final hearing then was held in common pleas court.

Judge Blachly, after having reviewed the report of Howard L. Kay, of Lima, who made an inspection of the books and records of the company, and heard testimony as to the true condition of the newspaper's affairs, took the case under advisement.

New Method Of Reducing Fat

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh steadily and easily without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals is a mighty important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical, because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) can be obtained of any druggist the world over or from the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., for one dollar a box which is a decidedly economical price considering the number of tablets each box contains.—Adv.

SENIOR PLAY NETS GOOD SUM FOR DELPHOS HIGH

DELPHOS — "She Stoops to Conquer," senior play, given Friday night in Jefferson-bldg. auditorium, yielded over $140.00 in receipts, according to S. C. Warner, superintendent of public schools.

Orville Beardsley, star in the amateur theatrical, stated Saturday that this insures the financial success of the "Delphi," annual year book, without any doubt. The contracts will be let this week for the printing and engraving work.

From every standpoint the play was successful and much talent was displayed thruout the entire show. Every seat in the auditorium was taken, and many were standing.

Miss Nancy Williams is given much credit for the success of the production, as she was in charge of the rehearsals. Miss Williams is also in charge of the amateur dramatic society in the junior and senior high school. Several short plays will be given in the future, in the afternoons, for the entertainment of the student body.

SCOUT ACTIVITIES MANY SIDED

Butcher Presents Movement as an Educational One

SUPPLEMENTAL TO SCHOOLS

Provides Right Channels for Boy's Surplus Energies

The Lima News today publishes the fourth of the series of articles dealing with the boy scout movement and written exclusively for this newspaper by Joseph M. Butcher, scout executive for this city. The articles began in last Sunday's News. Today's follows:

By JOSEPH M. BUTCHER.

The boy scout movement is a wonderful developed and, for the present, remarkably successful attempt to utilize the relatively spontaneous playing and other "achieving" instincts of boys from twelve to sixteen years of age toward a variety of ends of profitable development, physical, social and cultural.

Note first that it is a supplementary educational program that its objectives do not include those belonging by custom to our direct system of education in schools—the "studies," definitive forms of training etc.

Second: some of the primary objectives in scouting do resemble those that are sought at as secondary or incidental objectives, some times even under compulsion, in our school system—certain forms of bodily posture courtesy, respect of law and order etc.

Third: boy scout' education is so organized as to utilize the out of school time of a boy, altho its normal influence is expected to and does overflow into conduct of work and play activities in school time, and it is especially enjoined that it demands for time and energy shall not be allowed to encroach to those properly belonging to those of the school.

WIDE ACTIVITY RANGE

The boy scout system provides a program of alluring activity for the out-of-school time of the boy, its activities look toward out of door life, elemental primitive occupations closely associated with the boy's natural instincts of achievement.

The pedagogical genius, conscious or unconscious of the boy scout system is especially shown in the fact that the ideals made conspicuous and the activities enjoined are in every degree man's sized and man's used but adapted to boys in that transitional period when they want in large parts to behave like kids, but to be used like men, and further in the fact that the sole scheme of training is based on practicable teaching units, stunts, graded steps, projects, concrete achievements, specific opportunities for self measurement and self criticism.

No scientific evaluations of the results of boy scout education has as yet been undertaken, however, we can rely upon our practical judgment on what constitutes satisfactory results and upon popular approval of the means and methods employed. I believe that we have seen here in Lima and I believe also that school authorities, ministers, and the business men at large have approved of the boy scout movement. When the school board of a city the size of Detroit finds it profitable to employ a man full time to organize troops of boy scouts and to supervise scout activities in the schools they must see some educational value in scouting.

To quote Dean James E. Russell of teachers' college, Columbia university "as a systematic scheme of leading boys to do the right thing and to inculcate right habits, it is almost ideal. In the doing, two things stand out: the one is that habits are fixed; the other is that it affords an opportunity for initiative, self control, self reliance, and self direction. And these two ends that I have just mentioned are implicit in all our educational effort.

We know full well that good character depends quite as much—I think vastly more—upon fixed habits than it does either upon high ideals or correct information—these habits which are formed in boyhood and are strengthened as we go into manhood—you can readily see our indispensible part of the process for making good citizens.

Troop 6, which is attached to First Baptist church and under the leadership of Acting Scoutmaster K. B. Bond, held its regular troop meeting on Wednesday night on the ice of Faurot city park. Members present were: Oscar Bowyer, Thad Clark, William Clevenger, Donovan Davis, Raymond Harrod, Wilbur Harrod, Robert Jacob, Raymond Manhart, Damon Priest, Dallas Tyhurst, Robert Watts, and Marion Arendall.

The troop was formed at the church and marched over to the park. Some of the members had sleds and these were used by some of the Scouts who did not have skates.

It is reported that Acting Scoutmaster Bond in an exhibition of fancy skating connected with the ice to the detriment of both he and the ice. The skating party ended at 9:30.

Troop 6 will meet at First Baptist church at 7:15 p. m. Monday instead of Wednesday.

There will be a get-together of scouts of Troop 8 under the leadership of J. P. McFilton, scoutmaster, at 7:15 Monday at the Market-st Presbyterian church.

The Troop committee, Ellis E. Jones, Harry R. Pew, B. F. Welty, and William S. Peirce and Rev. Samuel Hnacker have been invited to participate.

This marks the beginning of a new era for Troop 8 which expects to come to the fore in scout activities.

FOOD PROFITEERS VEX GERMANS

Tarring and Feathering too Mild Says Paper

HAMBURG — (Associated Press)—Germans today are showing less patience with the profiteer and the price booster than ever before.

It is true they hold the government to blame in many ways for the food shortage and abnormal prices, and France does not escape when it comes to complaining, but the favorite head on which to empty vials of wrath is that of the food dealer of questionable character.

Strenuous measures to deal with this individual are everywhere advocated. To tar and feather these so called business men would be entirely too mild, says one newspaper.

They should be strung up by their thumbs, asserts one writer, or better still, turned loose somewhere in the wilds and allowed slowly to starve, given a taste of their own medicine. Their greedy, illegal tactics are described as worse than murder.

The methods used in Hungary to meet similar conditions are advocated. There emergency laws were passed, and whenever a food thief or a price booster, or any individual suspected of acting against the public interests in connection with the sale of food, was haled into court and convicted he was stigmatized for all time with the name of the crime of which he had been found guilty.

For instance, if a man in Hungary were found guilty of thieving, according to the German papers, he was first sent to jail, and when his sentence was up he was formally deprived of his family name, whatever it might have been, and in its stead he was legally given the name of "Thief" The same method was applied to price boosters, hoarders and profiteers.

WARWHOOP ECHO BECOMES FAINT

American Aborigines on Last Trail in Argentina

(By A. M. EASTERLING.)

BUENOS AIRES.—(United Press)—The Indians of Argentina are facing the absolute certainty of extinction within the next few years, when the last tribe must be swallowed up by the ver increasing Spanish population or fall before the bullet and sword.

The government will not recognize them as people apart and gradually is breaking their remaining tribal barriers, forcing them to adopt civilization, virtually as slaves of huge land-owners, or live the lives if outcasts.

Rebelling against the abject misery in which they have been forced to live many families of Indians have turned to outlawry and are being hunted down by police and posses of citizens, while a few tribes hang together in the extreme northern part of the republic or in the fog-swept reaches of Patagonia and steadfastly refuse to be taken into the folds of the white man's laws

Fifty years ago the power of the great Pampa tribes was broken in a battle that was destined to be the last important fight between the invaders and the aborgines. Since then the Pampa Indians have disappeared—absorbed by the peon population of the plains.

In the north, in the wide streches of he Chaco, wandering tribes still are at war, fighting to regain the hundreds of thousands of acres of land of which uncommon for a settler in the isolated sections of the Chaco to hear the war-hoop of the red man and the whir of a well-aimed arrow. Sometimes it is a bullet, but generally the Indians clad in loin-cloths only, use the bow and arrow and the knife.

They ride in bands, their women riding and fighting with them If they are successful in an attack they plunder and burn and mutilate and retreat. Many a rancher has succeeded in beating off his assailants to find among the victims of his marksmanship war and girls with rifle or bows in their hands.

In the south the spirit as well as the power of the Indians has been broken. The Patagonic Indians are become a pitiful reminder of the stock from which they came, ragged, hungry, degenerate, half-wild, eaters of fish, or helpless charges of whites. They shiver through the long, cold and stormy Patagonian winters half-naked, wrapped in shaggy skins, and the spring finds them fewer than in the autumn.

And it will be only a few years until the Indians in the north cease to be a state problem or a threat to the land-hungry whites. Their days are numbered.

TEAPOT DOME BOILS

GLOATING over the misfortunes of others is not an evidence of charity or forbearance, but when one suffers from his own acts, deliberately inflicted while doing financial harm to others, there is little demand for the application of the spirit of forgiving and forgetting.

Hence, those who have permitted their hands to become tainted in connection with the scandal revolving about the Teapot Dome oil steal, have only themselves to blame for what is now occurring. That "murder will out" is a saying as old as time itself, and why is it that men who are certainly old enough and sufficiently experienced to know better, permit themselves to be parties to a thing such as the Teapot Dome affair appears now to be, is something beyond human comprehension.

Carefully conceived deliberately planned and boldly carried out, appears to be the history of what is now termed the "theft of the Teapot". There may not have been corruption in the incident, but the suspicion is too strong to permit it to pass by unnoticed. The charges made are not only of a criminal character, but also involve the representatives of a great political party.

Leaders of that party, now in control of all branches of the government, are confounded and dismayed. They realize that only a complete clearing away of suspicion in the oil scandal will save that party from being punished at the first opportunity afforded the masses of the people. The admit that it is a big load for the party to be compelled to carry, in the face of a national election near at hand.

It is to be hoped most sincerely by citizens in all walks of life that if any are guilty of misuse of power and authority vested in them that government function, they will be punished, and that the country will not witness another case of whitewashing, unless it is in strict accordance with the facts in the premises. In the meantime, there should be no cessation of the Teapot Dome probe.

ARE YOU A SLACKER?

ARE you a community slacker? Do you take an active, constructive part in your community?

Answers to these questions denote to a large extent what kind of a citizen you are. They answer the question as to whether or not, you are performing the duties of citizenship.

Broadly speaking you are no better nor worse than your community; the community to a large extent is what you make it, as is your government. You are an integral part of your government and community; you are a reflection of them and they reflections of you.

If you stay at home or go to lodge and let your neighbor do the civic jobs at hand you are a civic slacker. We can't all be mayors and managers and organization heads. A few must be leaders. But we can all do our bit. We all can take a part that will help the leaders do better the work we have imposed upon them. Neighbor Jones can't do your work and his too. If he tries it, one or the other suffers, probably both, and therein the work as a whole suffers.

If you don't do your share you have no kick coming in regard to the results, unless it be against yourself. But that's not all. You can't hide behind that. You don't get off by saying you neither work nor kick. If you don't work your neighbor who does and the community as a whole has a kick coming against you.

To paraphrase the old expression about England, Lima expects every citizen to do his or her duty. You get your living in the community. You are a part of the community and as such are responsible to it. If you are a community slacker not only you but the whole community suffers.

We spoke first of the duty to yourself to appeal to your selfish nature. In case it is neglect rather than selfishness your sense of duty to your neighbors and your community should appeal to you.

Whether it be neglect or selfishness that puts you into the class of civic slackers the results are the same and the need for graduation is imperative.

CHILD "LABOR DAY"

THERE is a sentiment outstanding in a proclamation issued by Gov. Donahey, on the observance of the week of January 27, set aside for the furtherance of a national effort in behalf of the enactment of laws against the employment of child labor.

In the churches of the land today there will be discussions of the problem. In the schools tomorrow, information will be disseminated, and thruout the week civic organizations will be afforded facts concerning conditions, of which they have hitherto been aware.

The child is our greatest asset of the nation. The future stability of the nation and its progress is dependent upon their proper development—physical, moral and intellectual. Ohio has excellent child labor laws and compulsory education measures. The [illegible] all the states of the union, to the end of more consciousness that the [illegible] government depends upon the fitness of the individual. In this country, each individual is an important part of the government. A high standard of citizenship must be maintained.

It should be remembered that the excellence of a nation can rise no higher than the social and economic standard of its component unit. All tho Ohio is doing its duty to its children, so long as any other state is derelict in that direction, we are confronted with the problem of dealing with the unfit coming to our commonwealth from elsewhere. Thus all Ohioans are interested in improvement in other states.

There must be an amendment to the federal constitution before there can be a national law regulating child labor. The week of January 27 has been set aside for a nationwide effort in the furtherance of such an amendment.

YOUTH PROTESTS

A YOUNG man writes, protesting at the older generation's notion that the younger generation is "going to the dogs." He says truthfully that "40 cannot judge 20." And he adds the key of the whole situation: "If we do want to enjoy ourselves, it is because we know only too soon we will marry, and marriage nowadays has not much glamour about it. Jobs are too hard to get and keep, and there is not much money to be easily made."

You have noticed the tremendous number of young couples who find the pocketbook problem so acute that both husband and wife have to work. In a sense they are victims of men whose ambition, rather than to get a lot of money for themselves, is to prevent others from getting.

WILL YOU BE KILLED?

TWENTY-ONE thousand Americans will be killed by accidents this year while on industrial jobs, warns the National Industrial Conference Board. An additional 2,000 employers and self-employed people will be killed.

Whether or not your name will be included on this list may depend largely on your personal caution. Safety appliances help a lot. But constant personal caution is the best safety device. Be as careful, when working around danger, as when driving an auto past a schoolhouse.

—BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY—

NEVER MIND THE PULSE

The clinical thermometer is an instrument of precision which has great scientific value; in the hands of a physician or a nurse under the physicians direction or sometimes a patient under the physician's care it is an instrument of some practical value. For domestic consumption, however, it is about as necessary as an oil immersion lens or an astronomical observatory. The best use I know for a clinical thermometer in the home care of the sick is for stirring a little cold tea for the patient. The idea, the reason for this queer notion of mine—I do seem to have a lot of queer notions—is that if anybody is complaining or actually sick it doesn't do anybody a darn bit of good to know what the temperature may be. Except under the immediate direction of the physician the use of clinical thermometer is not only not advantageous but too often it is disadvantageous in effect, because it causes needless alarm in a trivial illness or, on the other hand, it fails to arouse sufficient anxiety in a grave illness.

So much for taking the temperature without the order of the doctor. Next, naturally comes the pulse. Should the layman try to take the pulse? Well, as a general rule I should say no, not as a confirmed habit. At least, not in the furtive, underhanded way the ordinary layman sets about taking it. If one really must take a pulse it is well to study the technic of the thing and do a neat and workmanlike job, whether any one is looking or not. The first rule is to tie your thumbs up out of the way. Thumbs have caused no end of disasters in attempts to take the pulse. If you use your thumb you get your own pulse and the victim's all balled up the effect would not be so dreadful if you were going to share the treatment with your victim.

I remember how morbidly I was affected by the discovery that I had no pulse in my left wrist. This followed not long after the discovery that I had no sense—no special sense, you understand—in my left ear. I began to ruminate upon the question of total left-sided paralysis. But came a glad day when I found the pulse in my left arm working all right at a point about two inches outside the ordinary situation of the radical artery at the wrist, in fact back behind the thumb in the hollow known as the anatomist's snuff-box. The moral of this is to keep your thumb out of the way when you're trying to take a pulse.

The simplest way for one to take his own pulse is to place the right hand on one's necktie in about the position one would assume to choke oneself. But don't choke. Let the hand rest there on your bosom, and gently place the left hand upon it with the fingers lightly clasping the wrist. Then if you are not too excited your finger tips will be right on the right radical artery and all you have to do is count the little throbs for a minute; anywhere from 60 to 80 of 'em will do very nicely for most folks. Should you fail to find any throbs, however, just bear in mind how I worried along for years and at last learned that I was all right and it was just a slight deviation of anatomical arrangement that had been ailing me all along.

A Thought

Every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor.—1 Cor. 3:8.

JUST FOLKS

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

THE STORY-TELLER

He isn't much on dinner speeches,
Has a voice which scarcely reaches
Half across the room—a mumble
Round the larkspur and the roses
But let little eyes and noses
Turn his way—he's in his glory
Telling them some fairy story.

Old folks cannot start him talking,
He's a silent man when walking;
Won't begin a conversation
On the perils of a nation,
Or religion, or the stages
Of our progress thru the ages,
But he has a way compelling
When it comes to story telling.

He can take the Toms and Marys
Wandering with real fairies;
He can babble like a fountain
Of the giants on a mountain,
And as wide eyes start to glisten
And young ears stretch out to listen,
From his lips the words come slipping

Wasn't made for great oration,
Argument or explanation;
Grown-up language seems above him,
But the little children love him,
And I never see or hear him,
With the youngsters crowding near him,
Held enraptured by his story,
But I envy him his glory.

THIS LITTLE WORLD

—LONDON—

BY MILTON BRONNER

LONDON—A deadly dull blight has settled upon London theaters, probably until April. It's an annual disease called "pantos," British for pantomimes.

Because in the days of their great-grandfathers, the theaters used to be given over in the Christmas season to the pantomime form of entertainment, the managers do the same now. Dramas, operas, comedies are swept off the boards.

The pretense here is that the pantos are put on for the delight of the children because Christmas is their season. But the pantos go on and on seemingly forever and they draw packed houses nightly—of adults.

There is one phase of tipping that is unknown in the states because Uncle Sam wouldn't tolerate it. Here, when Christmas comes your faithful letter-carrier doesn't rely on your generosity. He practically demands it.

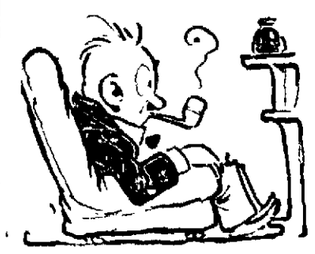

The men who serve you delegate one of their number as collector. He enters the names of all the people on their joint beat. Then he presents the book to the various people and they are supposed to write down the amounts of kale they are willing to contribute to the postman's Christmas box.

And the British postal authorities don't even bat an eye.

I ran across Sinclair Lewis, famous American novelist, the other day in Fleet street. Lewis by now knows his London and Paris as well as, or even better than, he knows New York. He told me he had to spend the summer at Fontainebleau near Paris and is now living there.

We went to the place where his next novel is being written. It's a delightful room in the Temple, that enclosure sacred to the legal profession of London. Many people wouldn't think it delightful, because the room is not particularly bright and it is heated by a little grate fire. But it has something you could get nowhere else in London and not at all in rushing New York or any other big American town—absolute quiet and isolation.

It's a perfect retreat away from the people who want to buy Lewis a meal or want him to buy them one.

LAWYERS FAVOR WORLD COURT

BAKER OFFERS RESOLUTION

Only Slight Opposition Shown as Result of Vote

COLUMBUS—(Associated Press)—The legal profession of Ohio as represented by the Ohio State Bar Association favors entrance of the United States into the world court. The association so expressed itself Saturday by adoption at the closing session of its mid-winter convention here of a resolution presented by Newton D. Baker, league of nations advocate and secretary of war under President Wilson.

While there was some opposition to the resolution led by Judge Frank Geiger of Springfield, the vote showed only a scattering of dissenting votes to the proposal. Previous to its adoption, the attorneys had heard Professor Manley O. Hudson, professor of international law at Harvard and active participant in the work of the court, explain its functions and methods of operation and the fact that in two years it had before it for decision nine cases embodying differences between European nations. While he would not say that the court had actually prevented war, it had arbitrated incidents the like of which have resulted in bloodshed previously, he declared.

SALARY OF JUDGES

The association also approved initiation of plans for submission of a constitutional amendment to equalize the salaries of the state's judges and increase their terms to ten years. The flare up which resulted yesterday when John Slaughter of Toledo, suggested that Judges were receiving too salary increases, during consideration of the proposal was not repeated today. It went through smoothly and with consent of Mr. Slaughter both his remarks and the reply of Judge James G. Tarbell of Brown-co, were ordered expunged from the record. While it approved the proposed salary increases and extension of terms, the association discovered a suggestion that judicial ballots designate the party affiliation of candidates and in twenty-five words permit them to state their qualifications. John J. Cline of Cleveland, who submitted the proposal urged its adoption as an aid to identifying the many judicial candidates in cities, but there expressed disapproval on the ground that they believed it would be of little benefit

PROPOSED ROAD MEASURE DECLARED TOO RADICAL

COLUMBUS—Declaring that the proposed legislation is entirely too radical, the Ohio Good Roads Federation Saturday asked Congressman Brand of the seventh district, to withhold, at least until after the next session of the general assembly, his proposed effort to have congress adopt legislation making it compulsory for the states, in the construction of a federal aid improvement, to furnish from state funds all that part of the cost thereof not supplied by the federal government. The federation says that this legislation would make it impossible for local political subdivisions or owners of benefitted property to contribute any part whatever of the cost of a federal aid road. Such enactment by congress, it is held, would be an interference with the internal affairs of the state.

HOME BURNED

CANTON—The residence of Louis A. Bernower, at Edgefield, north of here was burned to the ground early Saturday night with a loss estimated at $25,000. Members of the family were away at the time. The Canton fire department prevented the flames from spreading to other buildings.

PIERCE VIADUCT PLAN HITS SNAG

Automobile Club Learns Cost Would Be Prohibitive

ANOTHER LOCATION SOUGHT

Metcalf-st Now Proposed as Place for Elevation

Advocacy for the construction of a viaduct over the Pennsylvania tracks at Pierce-st and the opening of that thorofare thru to McKibben-st, is to be abandoned by the Lima Automobile club, because of prohibitive cost, it was learned Saturday.

Selection of another site for a viaduct over the tracks will be made by the club, with the view to providing a safe passage for north and south traffic.

Compensation and damages which probably would be claimed by property owners and the alleged refusal of the county to join in the project because Pierce-st is not a county road make the plan an impossibility, it is felt.

$100,000 CLAIM SEEN

Damages amounting to more than $100,000 alone would have to be paid to an ice and coal concern which owns yards and buildings north of the tracks, which would have to be moved. Other owners would also expect compensation for their property.

Added to cost of condemning a right of way would be the viaduct itself. Without aid from the county, the city and railroad company would have to bear the total expense.

Efforts will be made by the club to revive plans for a viaduct at Metcalf-st, two blocks west of Pierce-st.

SLOPE NEGLIGIBLE

Metcalf-st has a good elevation on the south side of the tracks, but the slope on the north side is negligible. Moreover, the approach from McKibben-st would have to be quite steep. The Pierce-st location seemed ideal on account of high banks on either side of the railroad.

Automobile club officials have turned their attention to the feasibility of a viaduct at Washington-st, one block east of Metcalf-st. There is a good elevation on both sides of the track.

About 20 feet or more clearance is needed for trains to pass under, without danger to trainmen riding on top.

An underway at either Elizabeth-st or West-st in the opinion of officials may afford a solution for the problem.

ORANGES ARE 10 CENTS PER DOZEN IN FLORIDA

"Flowers are blooming, the sun is shining, garden vegetables are plentiful, oranges are 10 cents a dozen and strawberries are 30 cents a box," write Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Reel, 531 E. High-st, who are now located in Tampa, Fla., for the winter.

Ohioans find Florida a mighty convenient wintering place, they tell in a letter to friends here, representatives from the Buckeye state outnumbering those from any other state. New York and Michigan are next in point of size.

Many of the tourists are auto campers, they say, and can be found in the public parks. There are many points of interest and excursions are common occurences.

Cool weather was experienced Jan. 7 and 21 but the temperature did not get down to freezing or even a light frost. The Reels expect to go to Sarasota and Braiden-Town this coming week.

CAKE EATERS AND DOLLS TABOO

Central Boys and Girls Tell About Their "Ideals"

"Cake Eaters" and "China Dolls" are taboo at Central high.

This is not an order from the powers that be, but a public statement by groups of boys and girls themselves.

A few days ago members of the Blue Triangle club, a girls' organization, and the Hi-Y club, composed of boys, wrote letters telling what they consider the ideal attributes of young men and women.

The young man must have good manners, be athletic, honest, intelligent, willing to work, stay away from liquor and eliminate all profanity from their vocabulary.

Besides this, ten girls demanded that their ideal be a gentleman at all times and nine voted against the use of cigarets. This latter action was tempered somewhat by the statement of three girls that cigarets are all right as long as they are used in moderation.

Now for the ideal girl as she is seen by the Central boys.

She must be clean physically, mentally and morally, be moderate in the use of cosmetics, be a good student, a Christian, a good dancer and should not talk too much.

"I wouldn't have my girl painted up like a China doll" said one writer while another asserted he didn't want his girl to weigh so much more with her complexion on." Another wants his ideal to like him just as well when he is broke or if he has to go home at 1 a. m.

One of the girls took a slap at the modern "he flappers" and suggested they get their hair cut at least once every six months. Another girl took a healthy wallop at 'these swellheaded sort of fellows."

"Looks like the barbers will do a good business from now on," said a man on the street when he heard how the Central girls consider the Valentino sheik type

Get Rid of the Cough Which Racks You to the Top of Your Head

It is weakening to you and in company it makes your friends keep at a distance. It is dangerous, too, for often one of those persistent, lingering coughs, at an unguarded moment, is the cause of rupture. Again, a cough, which is often worse at nighttime, when you try to sleep and in the morning, when you should feel refreshed, becomes so deep-rooted in your chest that your health is materially affected. Loss of appetite often follows, and this invariably helps the cough to get a stronger hold upon you

Many men and women who have suffered in this way have freed themselves from stubborn, hacking, weakening coughs by taking Eckman's Alterative, the original calcium tonic. It gets to the root of the trouble, aids the digestion and helps the system throw off the cough. After beginning its use, the cough will appear to be easier, and in time, as the calcium gets into the system, will in the majority of cases practically disappear.

Get a bottle from your druggist today, and ask him for our booklet, or let us send you a copy.

"Y" Gym Is Scene Of Hard Fought Caging Games In Race For Championship

Cook, Forward For Grace Five Proves Star Of Church League Games

The Grace M. E. and First Baptists' fives still remain tied for first place in the Church Basketball League standings as the result of Saturday night's games at the "Y." Both teams won over their opponents. Trinity remained in the cellar with four losses and no wins.

Cook, who played left forward for the Grace team, was the high scorer of the evening. He scored seven goals from the field and as many more from the fifteen-foot line. He totalled twenty-one points for his evening's work. As a result, Grace won, 43-12, the score being the largest run up in any Church League game this season.

Trinity's cellar team [illegible] to score a point in the first half of the game with the United Brethren crew after tying the count [illegible] at half-time. Finkle and Ewing were the high scorers of the contest, the former having three field goals and the latter having two fielders and three free throws.

Fitzgerald, of the First Baptist, proved too much for the Market St. Presbyterian team in the last fray. He tossed in five goals from the field and excelled the rest in all around play. Lincoln, his running mate, totalled eight points. Homan at guard, had three fielders to his credit.

South Side Church of Christ drew a bye and did not play.

HERE'S THE CHAMPION GIRL ATHLETE

"The champion all-round girl athlete of the world," declares Tom Eck, famous track coach of the University of Chicago. And he is talking about a little, smiling, black-eyed high school girl who is not yet 16 years old.

She is Helen Filkey, daughter of a Chicago building contractor. Four world's records and three American records make up her imposing achievement to date. She was born March 18, 1908.

"She is the only person, girl or boy, who ever made a world's record or won an athletic championship at her age," says Eck, who is her trainer.

"This coming season, outdoor and indoor, ought to bring some great performances from her. She expects to break every record she now holds and to add a few more to her list."

BROKE TWO RECORDS

Helen's greatest single day was on Labor Day last fall at the A. A. U. national outdoor meet in Chicago, when she broke two records. She made 16 feet 6 3-8 inches in the broad jump, a world's record for girls, and made the 100-yard dash in 11 [illegible] seconds, a new American record for girls.

Then, with only a 12-minute rest between events, she entered the 75-yard high hurdles and finished second in 11 3-5 seconds. In the running high jump she finished fourth, going 4 feet 8 inches.

"To show she was a better hurdler than the girl who defeated her," says Eck, "Helen ran a trial against time at another meet last fall. She went 75 yards over six hurdles in 10.6 seconds, breaking the record by one second.

WAS DELICATE CHILD

"In an exhibition at Washington Park here she threw a two-pound discus 76 feet 3 inches and threw the girls' javelin 87 feet 9 inches, the latter being the best American throw, altho it does not stand as a record. She also made 8 feet 1 1-2 inches in the standing broad jump without dumbbells.

"At an earlier meet here, staged by the Illinois Athletic Club, she won the 50-yard dash, and in winning the 60-yard high hurdle race set a pace of 8 4-5 seconds, equaling the world's record. The same day she broke the world's 60-yard low hurdle record in 8 2-5 seconds."

Helen Filkey was a delicate child until she was about 11 years old. Her mother took her to California for a year then, and she began her remarkable physical development by playing on the beach and taking athletic training. At 16 she looms up as the world's greatest athlete.

ENTHUSIASM AT BOILING POINT AS TIME FOR CENTRAL-SOUTH GAME NEARS

All roads will lead to Central gym next Friday evening when two most deadly rivals, South and Central, will clash on the basketball floor for the supremacy of Lima basketball.

Imbued with all that old time fight and determination that has made Central-South battles epochal in Lima sportdom the cagers of each school will begin the game, their eyes filled with the proverbial blood and victory the one object.

Lima devotees were worked into a frenzied state when the two rivals clashed on the gridiron, and altho the maze of colors and the spirit of victory will not be quite so dominant when the basketeers clash it is certain that the game will not lack pep.

Another dramatic meeting it is sure to be, this South-Central basketball struggle. On one side the red and green cagers, off to a fine start must face South with the thought running uppermost in their minds that a defeat at the hands of South would mean the crushing of victorious hopes.

On the other hand South, running arm in arm with a streak of hard luck must face the battler with the desire to brighten an unsuccessful season with a victory or maybe two over Central. Coach Burdette's warriors have been roughly handled by all the opposing teams and it's now a case of each player's back to the wall fighting with the spirit that won.

Experts agree that the Central team has the best edge in that it has played together longer and the players have had a wider range of experience while South has a team composed of men who are playing together for the first time and of some who are playing their first games of varsity basketball.

Central not only has a smooth working team on the offensive and a steady defense but the work of Farrell and Bash at forward herald no particular joy for South. Both are on the basket and possess much skill in floor work and local fans will note this with interest, as many believe that the South guards will be able to hold them in check.

South followers claim coming victory on the grounds that a hard working defense and a high degree of fighting ability on the part of every member of the team will win against heavy odds.

So it seems that the old feud of South vs. Central is creating as much interest as ever and the battle alone will decide the issue.

Both school mentors, Theibert of Central and Burdette of South, will work their charges for the coming fray as they never have worked them before.

Basket shooting, scrimmage and other departments of the game will be given emphasis as neither coach will risk the possibility of any man going into the game unless perfectly conditioned.

Altho changes may take place at a moment's notice it is probable that Farrell and Bash will start at forward for Central, King at center with Taylor and Hunter on the defense. For South, Bauman and Bowers at forward, Early at center and Thomas and Fry at the guards, look likely.

In the preliminary Central and South second teams will clash and it is expected that this game will be as full of pep and fight as the big game.

Manager E. A. Hauenstein of Central has made accommodations to seat as many people as the gym will hold, and every nook and corner should bear an interested spectator. Tickets will go on sale bright and early Monday, Hauenstein announces.

DOINGS OF THE BASKETEERS

A new basketball league has been formed in Y. M. C. A. sport circles known as the "Nut" League. It will begin play Monday night at the "Y" floor, starting at 8 o'clock. Games will be played every Monday night for a period of ten weeks.

Six teams are entered in the loop, members of which do not play with any other team in the city. They are:

HICKORY NUTS—Harry Archer, Capt. J. R. Adkins, Robert Neely, K. R. Bond, C. T. Lewis, John Riker and J. J. Fly.

WALNUTS—Walter Miller, Capt., Merle Powell, Nick Verdura, A. Schultz, Otis McBride, C. F. Alexander and Ray Heffner.

PEANUTS—Neil Warren, Capt., Leonard Brown, C. F. Shelley, C. L. Holmes, Kenneth Francis, Eli Stelzbus, A. G. Bell and Harold Smith.

TOURNEY BEGINS WEDNESDAY

DELPHOS — Class basketball tournament which has been postponed two weeks pending greater development of the teams and their organization, will begin Wednesday, according to S. C. Warner. Warner stated that he expected several games to be started then, both girls and boys competing. This tournament is looked forward to with much anticipation from the student body, as each class believe they have the best cagers. The Delphos varsity has had a [illegible] this week, and Coach [illegible] stated that several of the [illegible] showed real basketball skill, and would do much to win from Ridge.

OTTAWA HI WINS HONORS

OTTAWA — Ottawa High school boys and girls basket ball teams carried off honors in a game with Deshler High school teams, Friday night. Hundreds of people stood thru the game, anxious to ascertain the outcome. The score was 19 to 4 in favor of Ottawa boys and 17 to 10 in favor of Ottawa girls. Wilkins, of the Ottawa team, made several sensational shots and [illegible] was able to invade the Deshler line of defense at will. The referee was from Deshler. The next games will be played with Continental on February 1.

BOYS WIN—GIRLS LOSE

VAUGHNSVILLE — The High school boys' team won, but the girls' team were defeated in the game of basketball played here Friday night at the gymnasium. The first team of boys played Continental High school team, winning by a score of 26 to 19. Vaughnsville girls were defeated by the Continental girls, 20 to 4. The Vaughnsville second team played Grace M. E. church team of Lima and won by a big score.

WILMINGTON TEAM

WILMINGTON, Ohio—(Special to The Lima News)—Three Lima men are at present starring on Wilmington College's cage squad. They are Weldon Winegardner, Robert Fisher and Willard James. The [illegible] men also won letters in football. Winegardner began the season as a regular center but he recently sprained his ankle and has been forced to retire until the injury heals. Fisher substitutes at forward and James plays either guard or forward when called upon. Wilmington has won eleven games this season out of twelve played. The loss was to Lima Business College at Lima last month. Antioch College was defeated by the local team, 42-23, and wins were also chalked up over the University of Dayton and Kent Normal fives. Prospects for a winning baseball team are also bright.

LIMA ARROWS WIN

The Lima Arrows basketball team took a fast game Friday night from Elida Hi's team, 9-6. Elida failed to score in the second half after each team had six points in the first period. Lincoln and Swisher were the forwards of the Lima team, Shope jumped center; and Abrams and Houtzer played on the defense. The Lima team will play Cridersville in a few weeks.

Much Interest Centers In Games

Industrial Basketball League fans are [illegible] awaiting the result of [illegible] game between the [illegible] and L. E. & W. fives, [illegible] tied for first [illegible] games to be played [illegible] between the Lima Trust Co. and Locomotive Works quintets and the second between the Garford and Solar cagers.

The Garford team should make a better showing against the Solar five than it has made at any time during the season. Solar is one position above last place and a win over the refiners will give the truck-makers a chance to get out of last place in the next few weeks. If the game is added to the lost column Garford is almost certain to stay in last place thruout the season.

An expert informs us that Fred Fulton won his last two fights by knockouts. But we refuse to [illegible] they really were his last fights.

Few Changes In Big League Pilots

NEW YORK—(Associated Press)—George Sisler, new pilot of the St. Louis Browns and Dave Bancroft, who will essay a similar role for the Boston Braves are the only newcomers in the 1924 gallery of major league helmsmen. Washington may add a new face to the picture but as yet no manager has been appointed to succeed Donie Bush. This is the only vacancy now on the list.

Two others who saw 1923 American League managerial service have shifted [illegible], Frank Chance going from Boston to Chicago, where he succeeds Kid Gleason, while Lee Fohl, formerly with St. Louis, supplants Chance with the Red Sox.

Bancroft, former captain of the New York Giants, succeeds Fred Mitchell in charge of the Braves. Besides his managerial responsibilities, he will hold down the shortstop job.

Sisler, providing he recovers from the eye malady which kept him out of the game last season, will add a player manager to the American League roster that now includes Ty Cobb of Detroit and Tris Speaker of the Cleveland Indians.

Red And Green Scrubs Have 9 Games

A schedule of nine games has been arranged for the Central second team according to an announcement made by Manager Franklyn E. Doan, Saturday afternoon. Several dates are still open but letters have been sent requesting games for these dates and a 12 game schedule should be completed soon, Doan says.

The policy of having the second team play games is a new one but it is thought to be a fine plan for experiencing next year's material, by Head Coach R. J. Theibert. Of the games scheduled to date two will be played at home while the remaining will be played on foreign soil.

E. A. Hauenstein will have charge of the team and will be assisted by Virgil Rush, student manager. Bill Stanyer, star gridder at Central has been elected captain.

The season's schedule follows:
Feb. 1—South Seconds at Central.
Feb. 2—Kenmore at Kenmore.
Feb. 8—Wapakoneta at Wapakoneta.
Feb. 9—Dola at Central.
Feb. 15—South Seconds at South.
Feb. [illegible]—Bluffton Seconds at Bluffton.
Feb. 22—Ada Seconds at Ada.
March 1—Dola at Dola.
March 2—Open.
March 7—Open.
March 9—Roundhead there (tentative).

A week ago it was too warm for the ski jumpers. Now we read it is too cold for them.. The ski jumpers, apparently, are at their best only in the rotogravure sections.

Bream Draws Suspension By Board

"Babe" Bream has been suspended indefinitely by the Lima boxing board. The decision has been sent to the Ohio State Boxing association, which means that Bream will not be allowed to box in the state of Ohio until his suspension has been rescinded.

It was given out by the Lima Boxing commission that they would investigate the case of the local boxer, from the standpoint that he had, thru his dilatory tactics, been cause for much disappointment and considerable expense to the promoters of the last boxing show.

Bream has been reticent and backward with his excuse for causing this disappointment, in refusing to fight Jakie Gross at the Orpheum theatre in accordance to his contract. It might have been thru his condition in taking on a boxer of Gross' calibre in such a short time after he had been so decisively beaten by Tommy Bunch. If this is a fact, it is certain that he would have been only able to put up a bout which could not have gained him a victory over so clever an opponent.

It is unfortunate for Bream for the reason that it is quite likely that if the State Boxing association see fit to sustain the decision of the local board, he will not be allowed to box in any state where this association has jurisdiction.

Dunkirk Five Loses Game To Seconds

A fast and furious pass attack in the last few minutes of play enabled the Central Seconds to cage two field goals enough to defeat the Dunkirk five by a 21 to 16 count on the Central floor Saturday evening.

Altho the guarding of the Centralites was superior at all times the passing and floor work was miserably poor during the first three quarters, but a sudden revival of steam in the last period caught the visiting lads off their feet and the locals taking advantage caged the ball twice.

Thruout the game rivalry was nip and tuck, first one team and then the other taking the lead altho the red and green managed to hold it most of the time. At half time the seconds were ahead 12 to 9 while at the end of the third quarter the count was knotted at 14 all.

The game was hard fought thruout and neither team was able to gain an impressive lead at any time. For the first few minutes the seconds led 8 to 2 but long shots by Ripley and Young soon closed the gap.

Ripley, Dunkirk center, and Doan, Central pivot man, were stars of the game. Each made three baskets from difficult angles. The guarding of Herbst and Stanyer of Central featured.

The victory over Dunkirk increases the second team stock considerably. Dunkirk defeated Lima St. Rose earlier in the season and gave the strong Lafayette team a terrific battle. Bob Young, St. Rose coach, refereed the game Saturday evening.

In a preliminary to the feature game the Central Juniors were returned victors over the Central Sophomores by a 21 to 7 count. Both teams were evenly matched but the Sophs were unable to check the fast work of the Juniors during the last half. Boose starred with five baskets.

Ova Jump Is Quitting Race Game

KENTON—The passing from the racing game of a figure well known among Ohio horsemen and the racing fraternity during the past fourteen years, is to be chronicled here on Monday, February 4, when Ora Jump will dispose of his entire stable of twenty-two head of racing stock.

Due to a minor injury which handicaps him from the active part he previously took in the racing game, and because of the press of other business interests, Ora Jump has determined to quit the horse-racing sport, in which he held sway as one of the keenest sportsmen.

Jump has been a familiar figure as owner and many times as driver on practically all important Ohio tracks, both half-mile and grand circuit ovals.

He started in the race game in 1910 and has kept consistently at it since. His horse barn here, where he housed his favorites, is a marvel of modern equipment.

The racing stock, which Jump will dispose of on Feb. 4, consists of pacers and trotters, and includes the well-kknown pacing mare, Emma Gano, 2:14¼, who finished her first season in 1923 very successfully, appearing in events on many Ohio tracks.

O. S. U. FOOTBALL PROFITS WERE LARGEST IN HISTORY

Total Profits In Seven Football Games Net Ohio State $174,250

COLUMBUS, O. — Despite a second successive unsatisfactory season from the standpoint of the percentage table, net profits from Ohio State's seven-game football schedule last fall were $174,250, the largest in the University's history, it was announced. This fine showing is eclipsed somewhat, however, by the fact that indebtedness on the Ohio Stadium, completed last summer, still amounts to $472,000.

Total receipts for the season and the combined attendance for the at-home games both showed a slight decrease over the 1922 season, the figures, issued by Treasurer R. M. Royer, of the Athletic Board, disclosed. Official attendance for the five at home games last fall totaled 148,112 as against 160,457 for the five games in the Stadium in 1922.

Gross football receipts for 1923 were $275,571.92 as compared with $310,984.54 for the preceding season. As in the case of the attendance, the 1922 figures were swelled considerably by the Stadium dedication game with Michigan which alone attracted 73,000 spectators and yielded approximately $150,000 at the gate.

All things considered, athletic officials viewed the recent season as much more satisfactory from the standpoint of attendance and receipts. Of the at-home games, Iowa drew the largest crowd but the Illinois game yielded greater receipts. Of the games played elsewhere, the Michigan contest drew half again as large a crowd as the Chicago engagement, but the latter produced greater financial returns. These differences are accounted for by divergent scales of prices for tickets.

GUARANTEES PAID

Guarantees paid to visiting teams last fall totalled $83,074.31. For its three games away from home Ohio State received $85,402.7. Expenses incidental to the football season, exclusive of Stadium improvements and salaries, were $18,250.

The attendance and receipts at last fall's games follows:

	Gross Receipts	Attendance
O. Wesleyan	$18,432.60	25,294
Colgate	28,094.20	27,819
Iowa	46,511.90	40,202
Denison	13,296.10	17,247
Illinois	77,211.50	57,550
Michigan	40,014.09*	43,000 (Est).
Chicago	42,136.12	30,000
Purdue	3,252.51	6,000
Miscellaneous	6,622.90
	$271,571.92	227,000 (Approx.)

$150,000 UNPAID PLEDGES

Of the $472,000 still due on the Stadium plant, valued at more than $1,500,000, Athletic Director L. W. St. John pointed out that nearly $150,000 due on unpaid Stadium pledges has been shouldered by the Athletic Board in the form of loans. This unexpected factor adds to the Board's burdens. Interest charges on this large sum, faithfully pledged more than three years ago by Stadium subscribers and now more than a year past due, help to make the load still heavier, he added.

Final complete figures for the fiscal year ending June 30 last, also announced by Treasurer Royer, reveal receipts of $595,409.83 and expenditures in like amount for the period July 1, 1922 to June 30, 1923. These figures were swelled considerably by notes of $209,000 assumed on the Stadium and by payments of $293,000 on that account, besides an item of $19,270.72 for interest. During the present year the amount paid on account of the Stadium, including a final payment to the contractor, permanent improvement and interest, will approximate $110,000.

Football was the only varsity sport to pay its way in 1922-3. Out of football profits the expense of eight other varsity teams was partly borne.

Y. M. Team To Play Toledo Friday

With three wins out of five games played this season, the Lima Y. M. C. A. basketball team will buckle down to work this week in preparation for the game with the Toledo "Y" which will be played on the local floor Wednesday night.

The team itself will probably not get together before the night of the game, but the different members of the squad play on Industrial League teams and they will keep in shape by practicing and playing with their respective outfits.

Seven men will trot out on the floor representing the local institution. They are Captain Emans, Cotner, White, Poling, DuPere, Feigh and Ewing. The first five named will probably start the game, as they began the game against Sidney last Wednesday.

Toledo, from advance reports, has a very strong team. The squad is made up entirely of high school and college players all of which have had considerable basketball experience. If such is the case, Lima will be in for a hard game.

Physical Director Maxwell of the "Y" and Bryan Cotner, manager of the team, are negotiating for games with the Dayton and Van Wert Y. M. C. A. teams. Several other fast "Y" aggregations will be brought to Lima later in the season.

The Trinity church team will appear in the preliminary against either another church team or some fast juvenile outfit.

Presbyterians Are Again Victors

The Market-st Presbyterian team in the Sunday School League maintained its lead on the standings by winning over South Side Church of Christ Saturday afternoon at the "Y". The score was 16-15. Trinity won over Central Church of Christ and the Baptists walloped the United Brethren, 25-18, but the game was forfeited by the U. B. as the Baptists failed to have enough men eligible to play when the scheduled time came.

All the games were fast and hard-fought. No one team had an easy time with another, but each five played heads-up basketball from start to finish.

Central High Gets Worst Defeat

SPRINGFIELD, — (Special to the Lima News)—Inability to stop the speedy Springfield forwards and the failure of the Central offensive system to do effective work resulted in the most disastrous defeat of the season for the Central Hi squad here Saturday night. The final score of the game was 44 to 15.

Playing a whirlwind game from start to finish the Springfield boys were never topped and displayed a defense that the Central team was able to penetrate only a few times during the game. It seemed as though Central was bewildered and time after time missed shots that should have been goals.

Springfield started early when Brant and Keyser, the former center and captain, the latter a forward sunk the ball in successive triew at the basket. Springfield unearthed a dazzling offensive and the Lima team was at a loss to form a defense.

At the end of the first half the score was 20 to 8 with Springfield on the long end. In the second period the locals again went wild and time after time sunk the ball from various angles. Many shots were of the long variety.

Keyser and Brant starred for the locals with eight baskets each. Farrell was the Lima star with three baskets and a foul.

CONNIE MACK IS UNIQUE AMONG BASEBALL MANAGERS; MOST ORIGINAL GENIUS GAME EVER KNEW

(BY BILLIE EVANS)

It is questionable if the game will ever produce a leader with similar theories.

Strangest of all, Mack does not believe all umpires are incompetent, and that his club is constantly being robbed by poor decisions on the part of the officials.

"Umpires being human, make mistakes like the rest of us," says Connie. "A close decision given against my team often loses the ball game, but just as many close decisions given in my favor win them for my team.

"One season, merely as a matter of record, I decided to make note of every close decision which I believed was the turning point in the game, decisions which perhaps could have been given the other way. The result of about 30 games hinged on some questionable ruling, my team winning two more than they lost.

"I am positive that no club suffers to any great extent as the result of close decisions. On a season's play it will be about fifty-fifty. The breaks even up over the long route.

"The greatest trouble is that most managers, like fans, are partisan, they remember every tough decision that was even given against them and forgot every close ruling that favored 'em.

"Of one thing I am convinced, right or wrong the umpires call the plays as they see them. I often from my position on the bench disagree with them, but keep my thoughts to myself, knowing the decisions were honestly given."

In his attitude toward his players, Mack also had an entirely different system than many leaders. He figures ball games are won by always having your best men on the field, that is why he never is strong for senseless kicking at the umpire.

"Give vent to your feelings when you believe the umpire has erred, but always in such a way that you won't be ejected from the game," is Mack's advice to his players. "Ball games are won by fighting the other team, not the umpire. Go along with the umpire and he will do much better work.

"I pay my players to play ball not sit in the grandstand. A player who is suspended because of trouble with an umpire greatly handicaps his team. You can't win ball games with your stars sitting in the grandstand."

They do say that Mr. Mack often adds a fine in addition to the one imposed by President Johnson if he feels the player the one at fault. As a result it is a rarity to have some Philadelphia player put out of the game. Mack always has his full strength to shoot at the opposition.

The third decided peculiarity in the baseball system of the resourceful Mr. Mack is that he never believes in public criticism of his players for a bad play made on the field.

"No one feels worse than the ball player who has made a 'boner' play," opines Mr. Mack, "and it certainly doesn't help his state of mind to hand him a public call-down, seen by players and fans.

A few minutes after the game, or a short talk the next day in which the mistake is pointed out, always gets far better results in my opinion."

Yes, sir! Connie Mack is unique among the major league leaders.

AS A MATTER OF FACT

Being a Criticism of the Just and the Unjust in the World of Professional and Amateur Sports

BY HARRY BROADBURY

The decision of the Lima News giving the shade in the Gross-Rini bout to the Cleveland boy, was a terrific explosion in the camp of the local boy. It was exactly as I saw it; measuring every single blow; favoring neither; honest and above board. I would have preferred to have seen Gross win. He is a Lima boy, naturally home folks are of more importance to us than foreigners. But there is a principle which is the cardinal one of all sports and that is the motto "without fear or favor." This must bear weight, no matter what the result. I am glad to know that I was not alone in my opinion, I have found many competent judges of boxing who bear me out. It seems to me that Lima could be made one of the most profitable towns — at least any way near its size — for boxing in the country. But bouts must be fair and square and even tho we like to see the local boy win let the decision rest where it rightfully belongs. Boxing devotees will tolerate nothing else. This contest is past history now, and we're all naturally looking forward to the next one. The show all thru was a good one and it is certain that a majority of the sport boys who were there were well satisfied.

PARSON McGINTY GOT IN BAD

With the aftermath of this bout, I laughed at a silly story that appeared regarding a bout between Tommy Bunch and Gross, stating that Bunch would be no match for Gross. The tale was accredited to Parson Tom McGinty, secretary and right-hand man of Jimmy Dunn. So I wrote to Dunn; I wanted his answer. He wrote me by return mail. He emphatically stated that he never gave the authority for such a silly story. In his exact words he says: "I never gave anybody authority to say that Tommy Bunch was not good enough for Jakie Gross; not that Bunch would not box Gross." And then he goes on to say that he has only had Bunch for a short time, and: "he surely looks like a promising boy to me." Mind you in this from one of the best judges of boxers in the country. The fellow who piloted Johnny Kilbane thru most of his championship campaign, and the handler of Carl Tremaine. Here's the point he makes:

"I think that if Bunch had been in the ring, he would at least have gotten a draw. But I'm not after draws; it's knockouts I am after." He goes on and states that he has a lot of confidence in Bunch, and has him matched at Erie, Penna., Feb. 1, and Canton, Ohio, Feb. 11, and he emphasizes the fact that he has taken personal charge of the young fellow, and mind you, it's as sure as rent day that Jimmy Dunn isn't doing anything with a boxer if he hasn't a world of confidence in him.

WHAT DUNN SAYS OF GROSS

He states that he is bringing Bunch along exactly as he did with Kilbane and Downey. And he goes on and states that he cannot quite understand where Smith gets the idea that Gross is a world-beater, "for Peppers has boxed him three times, winning the first, drawing the second and losing the third. I don't think he would have lost IF GROSS HAD BEEN HELD STRICTLY TO THE RULES, for if you saw him box you can see he hits low. I don't say it's intentional, but nevertheless it's foul to hit low." Dunn conscientiously believes that he has in Bunch the making of a great fighter. He wants to match Peppers against Gross again. In speaking of Rini, he states that he cannot understand why Rini didn't knock him out, and then he says that no doubt Jakie made great use of his legs, and brings out the fact that it's hard to knock a boxer out who keeps dancing away. "I did not see the fight," he states, "but I have a good idea on the way Gross fights; I am not trying to take anything away from him, but if he thinks that he is a better boy than Bunch, he will have an opportunity to prove it before the present season is over. The young chap is working out with O'Connell, Rini, Peppers and getting better every day, besides getting a lot of experience, and he will be up in the big money before long."

And there you are.

WHAT McGINTY THOUGHT

"The boss jumped on my neck," was the way McGinty put it, in explanation of the story that Bunch would be overmatched. "He is pretty sweet on the kid fighting." Speaking of the battle, he states that "Rini should have been given the verdict for his aggressiveness, because he kept crowding Gross, and I think he landed the cleanest blows. I told Smith he was lucky getting the decision. Then he says in a philosophic manner, "that the judges saw it otherwise, and its no use hollering. They said draw and that's the way it has to go down on the records, but Rini was entitled to the decision."

FOHL AFTER LIEFIELD

Since Jimmy Burke, who acted as assistant to Frank Chance at Boston last year, has also been let out, it is almost a certainty that Lee Fohl, the new manager of the Red Sox, will hire "Lefty" Liefield, who was a very valuable man for Fohl at St. Louis

WELLS TO BOX IN ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Billy Wells, welterweight of London, England, today was signed to headline the next fight card in St. Paul on February 4. His opponent will be either Jock Malone of St. Paul or Dave Shade of New York.

CINCINNATI, O.—Jack Hendricks, recently resigned manager of the Indianapolis team of the American Association may become coach, scout and general assistant to Manager Moran of the Reds. "If the directors of the club at their next meeting agree with me, I shall be glad to see Hendricks signed up. He could render efficient service while we are in training in the south," Moran said. "The Reds so far have not obtained a minor club to be used as a farm for young players. It has been the plan to make Hendricks manager of such a team."

Troubles for Scribes

The Cincinnati club, with Pitcher Jake May and Carl Mays in the lineup will make trouble for the scorers this summer.

Americans Are Unbeatable Sprinters

CHAMONIX, FRRANCE — (By Associated Press.)—The men from the North, steel muscled and deep lunged, led the nations of the world in points scored at the end of the first day's competition in the winter olympic games, but the stoutest hearted American skaters hold the honor of having their flag as the first national emblem flying at the top of the Olympic mast.

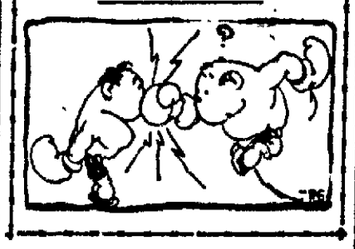

The Finns and Norwegians proved supreme in the distance skating, but the Americans on the ice, as on the cinder path, demonstrated that they were unbeatable in sprints.

Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid, N. Y., the international champion, won the 500 metre event, covering the distance in 44 seconds. Olson of Norway captured second place and Thunberg of Finland, and Larsen of Norway, divided third honors.

In the five thousand metres Thunberg, the world's speed skating champion, showed as much superiority over the others, winning with comparative ease in eight minutes 39 seconds, his time being the best of all the competitors.

Julius Skutnabb, also of Finland, took second place, covering the distance in 8 minutes 48 seconds in his heat with Valentine Bialis. American, second, Larsen, Norway was third.

LIMA AUTO SHOW FEBRUARY 19 TO 23 INCLUSIVE

MOST CARS SOLD ON PAYMENTS

ST. LOUIS—Automobile distributors and dealers of the United States satisfied the desires of more than 5,000,000 persons by arrangements which have allowed them to purchase automobiles on the time payment plan during 1923 according to announcement by the National Automobile Dealers' Association.

The total production of motor vehicles in 1923 was about 4,900,000 cars, 70 per cent of which were sold on a small down payment and the balance in six to eighteen monthly payments, or on some time payment contract. To this 3,500,000 new cars, must be added approximately 2,200,000 used automobiles which were sold by the dealers after they had been traded in on new car sales.

The satisfying of these purchasers greatly assisted in making 1923 the greatest sales year in the history of the automobile industry, bringing the total number of automobiles registered in the United States up to the astounding figure of more than 14,000,000; equaling if not exceeding the total number of telephones in the entire country.

We have become accustomed to paying our obligations month by month, the telephone bill, the milkman, the iceman, the electric light and gas. In fact all of our accounts in the shops of town, or in the business world fall on the first of the month when the bank balance has to be sufficient to meet them. We find the newspapers filled with advertisements calling our attention to the wonderful opportunities to buy homes, household appliances, pianos, musical instruments, office equipment, under schedule of time payments and now the banks are promoting the purchase of $1,000 to $5,000 in cash thru monthly deposits in their bank.

Is it any wonder that with thousands of families moving into the cities every year where the home is only to be had by the minority, that we have turned to the automobile, the outdoor home of the modern family, to broaden our friendships and open doors to a larger world constantly expanding with the miles upon miles of automobile highways built each year. Is it any wonder that the majority of purchasers prefer the time payment plan, including thousands of business and professional men, farmers, substantial people in every walk of life, thirty to forty per cent of which could purchase for cash if they so desired.

Economical monthly payments do not reduce one's monthly bank account, impairing bank credit to the extent that it might be effected were we to attempt to pay all of our bills for 1924 on the first of January, yet we would refuse to give up the telephone because of its advantage as an instrument of oral communication and there are just as many persons who would refuse to give up the automobile because of its efficiency as a unit of individual transportation.

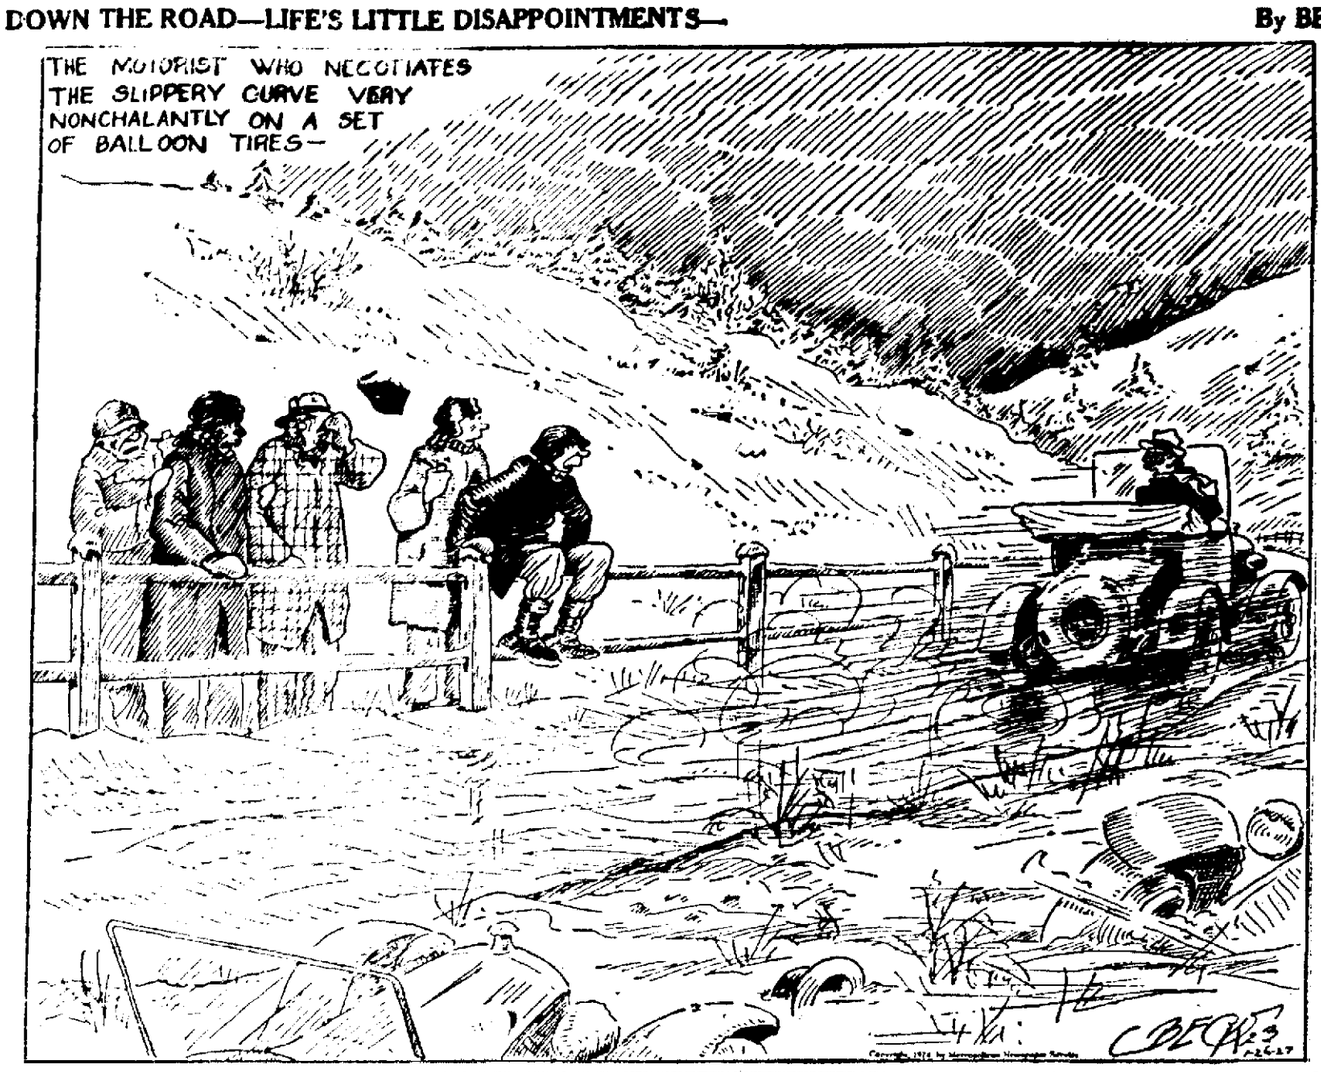

The amount of monthly payment that one is able to meet depends upon the income. Many attempts have been made to budget the family income and personal expense. All of these demand that one save ten per cent of the income for the unexpected demands, and future years when earning capacity is limited. But aside from this caution there is a wide variance of detail, allowing one to plan for such expenditures as are necessary to round out his existence. It is estimated that in 1923 nearly 10,000,000 included an automobile payment in their monthly checks. Ten million persons who recognize the automobile as one of the greatest single factors in daily, social, commercial and economic life.

The year of 1924 promises to be big and if the automobile industry is going to keep pace, acknowledging if you will the success of the time payment plans, it means that the newspaper advertisements of factories, distributors, dealers and bankers can well afford to set forth complete sales tables showing just how much a person has to pay down and just what monthly payment he will have to arrange to meet, if he is to buy an automobile on the time payment plan.

While the factories recognize the value of the time payment in keeping up their volume production, the average new purchaser hesitates to suggest that he desires to buy on time for fear that he will immediately jeopardize his standing in the eyes of the salesman and firm where he finds the car he desires to own.

Past announcements show that the factories are planning to build some 5,000,000 automobiles during the present year. The experience of some of the factories show that 99 per cent of time buyers completed their payments, and that they promptly met their installments during 1923. They should prepare to acquaint the public with the fact that they welcome such business if the time payments are to prove successful in 1924 as they did in 1923. Publish time payment schedules complete from the first to the last dollar and watch the prospect list grew.

DOWN THE ROAD—LIFE'S LITTLE DISAPPOINTMENTS— By BECK

HI OR CAL, JOBHOLDERS OF CALIFORNIA CAN'T SAY

LOS ANGELES—(United Press)—California federal office holders are in a quandary.

The recipients of political patronage in this state are unable to decide whether to support President Coolidge, their chief, or Hiram Johnson, to whom virtually all of them owe their positions. The situation is unique.

Practically all of the office holders have previously supported Senator Johnson. It is understood that their personal inclinations also favor the senator. Also from a practical standpoint, it is argued that even should Johnson fail of nomination, he will still control California patronage.

On the other hand, Coolidge supporters claim it is their duty to back the president. Coolidge leaders point out that Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, who has always allied himself with the regular Republicans, will have a voice in reappointments.

Both sides are ready to welcome the office holders.

MOTOR CAR IS AID TO DISCOVERIES

The startling discoveries of the Third Asiastic expedition, with their priceless contributions to science and commerce, would have been impossible without motor cars.

That is the blunt, unequivocal statement of Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the expedition which returned recently from a two-year search of innermost Mongolia, with the largest and most valuable collection of fossils ever brought into the United States.

When the party started from China, Mr. Andrews was told that camels and horses were the only means of transportation known in the interior of the country he was about to penetrate. To cross the Gobi desert alone was a feat to test the endurance of the most rugged car, and had been accomplished but seldom. To ford the streams and cross the hilly, roadless wastes of the unknown land beyond the desert, however, was considered an utter impossibility.

Nevertheless, Mr. Andrews had made up his mind.

"Dodge Brothers rules prevented them from contributing their cars to our expedition," he said, "but I felt that I had to have them, anyhow, even tho numerous other manufacturers had offered to supply me. I had penetrated Mongolia before and I knew just about what would be required of a car.

"So I bought three Dodge Brothers cars at full list price in Peking—one touring car and two 3-4-ton commercials. I tried every insurance company in China, I believe in an effort to insure the cars before starting the trip. They only laughed at me, even when I explained that I cared for nothing except insurance against total destruction. We had our mechanics and service parts and knew that we could survive any accident except annihilation. But the insurance companies said no car could get in, much less get out—and so we traveled at our own risk.

"What those cars did was a revelation to the whole eastern world. We crossed rivers, plunged in and out of deep ruts and thumped over boulders until we thought everything must shake to pieces. But those cars kept going. Terribly overloaded, they did the impossible day after day. Sometimes we chased wild animals across the roadless plains at high speed. The Re-painting Days Are Gone

NO other car, at any price, offers you a body built and finished like this New Jewett Brougham. Body is built of several steel panels over wood frame—wood, because wood absorbs vibration. Each steel body panel is dipped three times in finest black enamel and baked, with a rub between each coat—then fastened to the wood frame.

Years of Beauty

The result is, this New Jewett Brougham has a finish that stands the hardest wear and tear. Three years should elapse before re-painting is needed. And this car of lasting lustre has luxurious velour upholstery.

Both individual front seats fold—easy entrance and exit, either side. Rear seat 46½ inches wide—spacious for 3 adults. There's ample leg room for the tallest.

Not a "Light" Six

And Jewett Six is a sturdy six—not a "light" six. Jewett touring models weigh 2805 pounds—400 pounds more than some "light" sixes—and the Brougham in proportion. Jewett has 6-inch-deep frame; Paige-Timken axles front and rear; all-steel universal joints.

Jewett has full 50 h. p.—249 cubic inches piston displacement—20 to 40 per cent more than "light" sixes. And Jewett's Paige-built motor stays good, for it's high-pressure oiled like the Paige and other highest quality cars. 65,000 Jewett owners through millions of happy Jewett miles have proved its rugged dependability.

Like all closed Jewett models, this New Jewett Brougham has "open car" performance. Drive it from 2 to 60 miles an hour, or more, in high; accelerate from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds in high; pass most any car on any hill.

Delightful for Women

Women, especially, like Jewett's gentle clutch. Depress the pedal with your hand to see why. Gear changing is seldom necessary and then it is effortless. Move the lever fast or slowly without a "miss" or clash. You can even shift from high to second at 30 miles an hour.

In all the world no car like this! Jewett Six offers a combination of advantages, and mechanical superiorities, found in no other car—the ideal combination of roomy comfort and convenient size; sturdy construction; wonderful power; amazing performance—moderately priced.

Consider this New Jewett Six Brougham for your family and business needs. Call us any time for a demonstration.

How Jewett Six Compares With Costlier Cars

Eleven well-known larger sizes have smaller motors than Jewett. Their prices are $1535, $1790, $1185, $1650, $1675, $1795, $1495, $1335, $1485, $1295, $1590. To get a car the equal of Jewett's power for weight you have but two choices—one car costing $420 more, another costing $685 more, than Jewett—these choices, or $5000 cars. Furthermore, no other six under 119 inches wheelbase weighs as much as Jewett. Remember Jewett is a sturdy six—not a light six more Ford cars and trucks were produced last year than the previous year, an increase of over 50 per cent.

In spite of this tremendous increase in production, it was impossible to meet delivery requirements during the spring and summer months when orders for 350,000 Ford Cars and Trucks could not be filled.

This year winter buying for immediate delivery has been more active than ever before—and in addition 200,000 orders have already been booked through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan for spring delivery.

These facts clearly indicate that the demand during this spring and summer will be far greater than ever, and that orders should be placed immediately with Ford Dealers as a means of protection against delay in securing your Ford Car or Truck or Fordson Tractor.

Lima Auto Exhibit Creating Interest

Auto Show This Year To Be Greatest In Annals Of Local Motordom

W. H. Howell of the Lima Overland Co., secretary of the Lima Automobile Merchants' Association, returned yesterday from Cleveland where he attended that city's great twenty-third annual automobile show. Mr. Howell reported the Cleveland exposition was one of the greatest automobile shows he had ever seen.

Mr. Howell as secretary of the Lima dealers' association conferred while in Cleveland with R. H. Phillips who is to manage the Lima automobile show this year. The Lima show is to be presented under the auspices of the dealers' association in the Timmerman building at 545 West Market street. The dates are February 19 to 23 inclusive.

Accompanying Mr. Howell to Cleveland were Carl Bowdle and Arthur Bryan, other Lima dealers interested in the association and its show there. Manager Phillips reported to them that he had closed contracts for the coming Lima show for entertainment numbers and decorations which will make the Lima show bigger and better than any exposition this city has ever had.

The main entertainment numbers will be furnished both afternoon and night by the Marjorie Moore Melody Maids, a Cleveland musical organization of women that presents programs of vocal and instrumental numbers. They have been the hit of the Cleveland exposition and are in demand all over the state.

The contract for the decorations has been awarded to the William Beck & Sons Co of Cincinnati, a capable decorating concern that specializes in decorating automobile shows and which made last year's show in Lima so attractive. This season the company has a lot of new ideas which will be used in adding to the attractiveness of the Lima display.

Manager Phillips has been associated with the Cleveland show for a number of weeks, helping make the big city's exposition the success that it has been. He expects to incorporate in the Lima program many of the attractive features that were used in Cleveland.

Reports from all over the country are that the general interest in the automobile is greater this year than it ever was. This is due largely to the radical changes in body lines which are shown in the 1924 modelse of the passenger cars. Chief among these changes are the four wheel brake and the balloon tire which will be seen in profusion at the Lima exposition with plenty of representatives to demonstrate the merits of each. Many other changes have been introduced by individual motor car manufacturers and the visitor at the Lima show will find much to learn about the new automobiles.

Passenger car space for the Lima show has been filled, it is understood, and most of the accessory space has been taken. So great is the variety of exhibits being arranged for Lima that it can safely be said that this year the Lima exposition will be the most comprehensive this section of the state ever had.

Preparations are being made for the handling of big crowds because the great general interest in the motor car makes it reasonable to expect that hundreds will come from other towns in this part of Ohio.

BATTERY SERVICE WILL BE CHARGED

The Lima Battery Division of the Board of Commerce passed on a 25c service charge at all battery stations to be effective February 1st. In order to maintain a service department or service man free of charge and realize any profit after battery prices have dropped to the bottom, it is necessary to give better service and closer attention to the battery for a small cost.

Lima battery men are late in their move to charge for service. Cleveland, Toledo, Columbus, Dayton and several larger Ohio cities have been charging for this service six months ago.

Without doubt Lima motorists will see the benefit of this charge when their battery will be given personal attention, which will consist of: 1—Testing each cell with hydrometer. 2—Replacing evaporation when needed. 3—Cleaning and Vaseling terminals. 4—Cleaning top of battery. 5.—Tightening all screws and hold-downs.

Local battery men have been doing a good business. Balance sheets for 1923 shaw a large scale in units but a drop in dollars and cents, which is attributed to free service on batteries sold at rock bottom prices.

THAT MOTOR CAR OF MINE

Heart-to-heart Talks With Automobile Owners and Drivers on How to Get the Most Out of Their Cars at the Least Expense

Irrespective of the automobile advertisements, there are really just two speeds—lawful and awful.

TWO TRAFFIC TRICKS

The emergency brake is handier to use than the service brake as a means of keeping the car from coasting backwards when starting on a hill. The feet are then free to let in the clutch and feed gas with the accelerator. If a motorist uses the hand throttle and does the braking with his right foot he invariably races the engine and has trouble shifting from "low" to "second."

When stopping in traffic to discharge passengers it is well to remember to insist upon having them dismount on the right hand side of the car. Many a person has been seriously injured by being "winged" by passing vehicles when alighting on the left hand side of a car. While the driver is not responsible for his passengers under such conditions their safety is a matter of great interest to him. Make them use the right doors.

QUICK SHIFTING REQUIRED

Getting past a street car that keeps you stopping eternally is more a matter of skill than engine power. A lot of cars which ought to be able to pick up much faster than a street car are constantly forced to defeat because their drivers do not know how to get the "pick-up" out of them. The whole secret lies in the ability of the driver to shift into "second" as soon as he has gotten a start. If he stays in "low" too long the street car will get away from him while he is trying to shift to "second" at about three miles per hour, and advances the spark as he feeds gas, the machine will get away like lightning. He can remain in "second" until he has a good lead on the car.

CHOOSING GARAGE DOORS

While the home garage still exists on paper no feature of its construction deserves more careful consideration than choice of door. A poorly planned door may be a source of continual regret, while one that cannit be operated with a minimum of effort will plague the patience of a modern Job.

DRIVING THROUGH RAIN

Various home-made schemes for making rain run off the windshield are frequently dangerous in that they tend to carry the water off in invisible grooves. These grooves, whether horizontal or perpendicular, cause the windshield to become a temporary and partial lens, and light seen thru the windshield, or headlights of other cars shining upon it, will cause distortion. In the former instance the driver may find that he misjudges the position of an object, while in the later the glare of approaching headlights will be more annoying than usual. An efficient windshield wiper is the best solution.

WINTER DRIVING DON'TS

Don't assume that there is plenty of oil in the crankcase just because the indicator registers "full." Half of it may be gasoline, especially in Winter when the engine is choked excessively.

Don't race the engine to warm it up. Run it normally and try to keep the spark retarded, advancing it momentarily to prevent stalling as necessary. A retarded spark helps warm things up.

Don't crank the engines with the clutch engaged. The starter has enough to do without turning over the geers too.

THE RUST PERIOD

When the car is brought into the heated garage after being out in the cold, watch the nickel trimmings. Moisture will condense on the lamp rims, the radiator, the door handles and other nickeled parts. If this is not dried off or the nickel trimmings polished more frequently than usual, rust will collect at an excessive rate, perhaps catching the owner unawares.

KEEP STRAIGHT AHEAD

If you happen to forget to signal the fact that you intend turning, and if you are suddenly aware that another car follows the sensible thing to do is to go straight ahead again. It means going a block out of your way, but considering the possible collision you avoid by not getting in the way of the other car it is worth it.

BALLOON TIRE IS A SENSATION

"So far, Firestone Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords have appealed to most car owners, thru their desire for greater comfort and safety in driving," says Mr. Wm Pflaum.

"While the most striking characteristics of these tires are safety and comfort, I believe that the day is not far off when the economy of these tires will be recognized as one of their chief advantages. From my own experience I think they are a real business investment that pays for itself in the course of a very few months.

"The pronounced cushioning qualities, which result in such supreme comfort, naturally protect the car from wear and tear. Upkeep and replacement expense are eliminated. Car depreciation is reduced to an almost negligible point.

"The expense of continual tightening and adjustment, resulting from squeaks and rattles becomes unnecessary. For joints and fittings do not work loose on the car equipped with Balloons.

"Altho the carcass of the Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord is necessarily thinner and more supple than the standard tire in use today, carefully kept records show that these tires return just as long mileage. Punctures and blowouts are no more frequent. And many causes of tire failure are entirely removed.

"To make the flexible Balloon Gum Dipped Cord durable and long wearing Firestone employs the well known Gum Dipping process, which has proved so successful in giant truck pneumatics and in regular Firestone passenger car tires, by means of gum dipping the cords in the body of the tire are embedded in rubber and thus protected from internal wear. This gum joins the component parts of the tire into a strong, coupled action. Gum Dipping has actually made the Balloon Cord practical for everyday use.

"Two million miles of tests already conducted prove that no longer means must the car owner sacrifice motoring economy in order to obtain the many advantages of Balloon Gum Dipped Cords."

"FLU" WIPING OUT RACE IN SOLOMON ISLANDS

SUVA, Fiji Islands—Natives on the Guadalcanar coast, one of the islands of the Solomon group, are dying off at a fast rate, it is reported by Capt O Svensen, a plantation owner who has just returned from a visit to the islands.

He said these islanders had lost much of their vitality and had become an easy prey to such diseases as influenza.

"In the early days," explained Captain Svenson, "these coast tribes were kept in fine physical condition. They were always on the qui vive for attacks from bushmen, who used to raid the coast dwellers constantly. Now there is no fighting. The coast men are becoming a very indolent lot, without ambition, quite content to loaf about and allow their women to cultivate a few yams. They are losing vitality and dying off by the dozens."

Development work in the Solomon Islands, he said, has been at a standstill for the last five or six years on account of the leasehold system introduced by the administration.

How We Spend Your Money

in building Studebaker cars

Why people buy 150,000 yearly

IT is true that we spend lavishly on Studebaker cars. But it's all to your advantage.

It is by that spending that we give you the greatest value in the fine-car field. We offer prices no one matches on any comparable cars.

That lavish spending led people last year to pay $200,000,000 for Studebaker cars. And that volume brings our prices down to where they are.

$50,000,000 in plants

Studebaker assets are $90,000,000. In modern plants and equipment we have $50,000,000. Seventy per cent of that amount was spent in the past seven years. So it represents the last word in equipment.

$8,000,000 in drop forge plants, so every vital part is made to Studebaker standards.

$10,000,000 in body plants, so Studebaker ideals may be shown in every body.

All that is staked in a permanent way on satisfying fine-car buyers better than our rivals.

What extras cost

Lack of vibration is a famous Studebaker feature. We get that by machining crank shafts as they were in Liberty Airplane Motors. That extra cost is over $600,000 yearly.

Matchless endurance is another famous feature. One Studebaker Six, still in active use, has run 475,000 miles since 1918. We get that through costly steels. On some we pay 15% bonus to makers to get formulas exact.

Beauty of finish is another supremacy. But that finish requires many operations, including 15 coats of paint and varnish.

Our real leather cushions cost $25 per car over imitation leather.

Every Studebaker car is Timken-equipped. The Special-Six and the Big-Six have more Timken bearings than any car selling under $5,600 in America. The Light-Six more than any competitive car within $1,000 of its price.

In closed cars we offer wondrous luxury. The lining is Chase Mohair, made from the fine fleece of Angora goats. Velour would cost about one-third that, saving up to $100 a car.

Note those bumpers, that steel trunk, those extra disc wheels with cord tires on some models. Note that extra courtesy light. Think what they would cost if you bought them.

The cost of care

The unvarying standards in Studebaker cars are fixed by a department of Methods and Standards. It is enormously expensive.

Our constant improvements are due to ceaseless research. 125 experts devote their time to the study of betterments. They make 500,000 tests per year.

That reliability is due to 12,000 inspections of the material and workmanship in each Studebaker car before it leaves the factory. This requires 1,000 inspectors.

Being generous with men

We pay maximum wages—at least as much as anyone else will pay. Then we pay extra for continuous service. Last year, 13,000 men in our factories got anniversary checks—total $1,300,000. After five years of service those checks amount to 10% of their wages.

We spend $2,000,000 yearly on our co-operative work for men.

Every year we give factory employes one week's vacation with pay. That cost us $225,000 last year.

We sell them stock on attractive terms. We retire old employes on pensions.

All this to keep men happy, to foster morale, and to keep men with us when they develop efficiency.

Not extravagance

Do such things seem extravagant? They are not. All those extra dollars save more dollars for our buyers.

They result in the cars you see, in the prices and values we offer. Nothing else in the field can compare.

Those values have resulted in a demand for 150,000 cars per year. That volume cuts our costs in two, as compared with limited production.

It is Limited production,
Heavy overhead,
Out-of-date machinery,
Antiquated methods,
Non-economical plants,
Transient labor,
Discontented workers.

We've eliminated those things. We've done it at what seems to you a heavy cost per car. But each of those extra dollars saves $5, we believe. Note what values and what prices have resulted. Note the amazing demand—the overwhelming demand—it has brought for Studebaker cars.

Don't Buy Blindly

Studebaker is today the leader in the fine-car field.

You can find nothing in cars at $1,000 or over to compare with Studebaker values.

Studebaker sales have almost trebled in the past three years. The growing demand is the sensation of Motordom.

For 72 years the name Studebaker has stood for quality and class. But never so much as today.

Then don't buy a car at $1,000 or over without learning what we offer.

LIMA TO HEAR NOTED ST. OLAF LUTHERAN CHOIR

Woman's Music Club Announces Famed Organization Led by F. Melius Christiansen Will Give Concert April 9 at Memorial Hall

Plans for Next Year's Program Already are Under Way As Organization Arranges Annual Board Meeting With Mrs. Charles Black

THE world famous St. Olaf Lutheran choir, which will give a concert at Memorial hall on April 9th, under the auspices of the Woman's Music club of the city, is comprised of sixty-four boys and girls, all with exceptionally trained voices. This choir, which sings its entire program of difficult choral music from memory and without instrumental accompaniment of any kind, is made up of students, chosen from more than nine hundred young people who attend the St. Olaf college at Northfield, Minn.

The fact that these young college students are able to combine this splendidly artistic, religious and ethical work with their college duties has made a deep and widespread impression. Music critics over the entire country can not praise this "wonder choir of the continent" too much.

F. Melius Christiansen is the remarkable leader of the St. Olaf choir. His strange skill in developing and assembling untrained voices has won him an international reputation and has put Northfield, Minn., definitely on the music map. Christiansen was born in Norway, coming to this country at the age of 17. He received most of his training at the Northwestern conservatory of music in Minneapolis, and later taught here.

Officers and members of the Woman's Music club already are making plans for next year's concert program that it may be as excellent as the program for the present year. Mrs. Charles Black, president of the club will open her home Monday evening, February 4th, for the annual board meeting of active members of the club. The affair will be a covered dish supper, with business following. At this time a report will be made by the ballot committee, of which Mrs. ... K. Bannister is chairman. New members of the board will be elected later.

Half a hundred club women, presidents and delegates of the various clubs, attended the open meeting of the Lima Federation of Women's clubs held in the Crystal room of the Hotel Argonne, Saturday afternoon. Mrs. E. B. Taylor, president of the federation, presided. Mrs. Frank Sealts, treasurer of the federation, gave the year's financial report, stating that at this time there is, in the organization's treasury, a sum of more than $500.00. The amount of $381.61 was realized from the Fall Festival held in November.

AND NOW, THE KITCHEN COMES INTO ITS OWN AMONG MODEL ROOMS

(By MARIAN HALE.)

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—The kitchen is coming into its own. Now that every other room in the house has received its quota of attention from the interior decorator, we are beginning to realize the possibilities of the kitchen.

Probably one of the most modern complete and beautiful kitchens in the country is in the "Ideal Home," in Newark, N. J., built by a department store at a cost of $80,000, to show the public just what a home can be.

Of course, few can be expected to duplicate such a home, but in this kitchen are several ideas which can easily be installed in the moderately priced home.

There's a wall cabinet, long and narrow, which offers accommodation for brooms, brushes, carpet sweeper and dustpan and keeps these necessary but unsightly objects out of the corner or the back stairway.

There is a berth for the ironing board. It may be let down on a folding standard, which makes a firm foundation. A similar compartment below is for the electric iron, with an electrical connection adjacent.

Those who have washed dishes in a kitchen with one central light to illuminate the whole room will appreciate the wall light immediately over the sink.

Every inch of room available for closets and cupboards is used so that nothing need stand around and collect dust.

Miss Flora Garretson and D. E. Winfree entertained members of the Redouble Bridge club at the Hotel Barr, Friday evening. Dinner was at 6:30 o'clock, with covers for twelve being laid at the table. Following the dinner, three tables of bridge were filled for play.

LIMA TO HEAR NOTED ST. OLAF LUTHERAN CHOIR

Woman's Music Club Announces Famed Organization Led by F. Melius Christiansen Will Give Concert April 9 at Memorial Hall

Plans for Next Year's Program Already are Under Way As Organization Arranges Annual Board Meeting With Mrs. Charles Black

THE world famous St. Olaf Lutheran choir, which will give a concert at Memorial hall on April 9th, under the auspices of the Woman's Music club of the city, is comprised of sixty-four boys and girls, all with exceptionally trained voices. This choir, which sings its entire program of difficult choral music from memory and without instrumental accompaniment of any kind, is made up of students, chosen from more than nine hundred young people who attend the St. Olaf college at Northfield, Minn.

The fact that these young college students are able to combine this splendidly artistic, religious and ethical work with their college duties has made a deep and widespread impression. Music critics over the entire country can not praise this "wonder choir of the continent" too much.

F. Melius Christiansen is the remarkable leader of the St. Olaf choir. His strange skill in developing and assembling untrained voices has won him an international reputation and has put Northfield, Minn., definitely on the music map. Christiansen was born in Norway, coming to this country at the age of 17. He received most of his training at the Northwestern conservatory of music at Minneapolis, and later taught there.

Officers and members of the Woman's Music club already are making plans for next year's concert program, that it may be as excellent as the program for the present year. Mrs. Charles Black, president of the club, will open her home Monday evening, February 4th, for the annual board meeting for active members of the club. The affair will be a covered dish supper, with business following. At this time, a report will be made by the ballot committee, of which Mrs. J. K. Bannister is chairman. New members of the board will be elected later.

AND NOW, THE KITCHEN COMES INTO ITS OWN AMONG MODEL ROOMS

(By MARIAN HALE.)

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—The kitchen is coming into its own. Now that every other room in the house has received its quota of attention from the interior decorator, we are beginning to realize the possibilities of the kitchen.

Probably one of the most modern complete and beautiful kitchens in the country is in the "Ideal Home," in Newark, N. J., built by a department store at a cost of $80,000, to show the public just what a home can be.

Of course, few can be expected to duplicate such a home, but in this kitchen are several ideas which can easily be installed in the moderately priced home.

There's a wall cabinet, long and narrow, which offers accommodation for brooms, brushes, carpet sweeper and dustpan and keeps these necessary but unsightly objects out of the corner or the back stairway.

There is a berth for the ironing board. It may be let down on a folding standard, which makes a firm foundation. A similar compartment below is for the electric iron, with an electrical connectic : adjacent.

Those who have washed dishes in a kitchen with one central light to illuminate the whole room will appreciate the wall light immediately over the sink.

Every inch of room available for closets and cupboards is used so that nothing need stand around and collect dust.

Miss Flora Garretson and D. E. Winfree entertained members of the Redouble Bridge club at the Hotel Barr, Friday evening. Dinner was at 6:30 o'clock, with covers for twelve being laid at the table. Following the dinner, three tables of bridge were filled for play.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Madame:

I ASK your opinion in this, another case of mine.

I am not in love, still I value the respect and very kind attentions of my friend, who has helped me to participate in more pleasure and entertainment than anyone else has helped me during the past two years. I have always decided the girl or man who leads anything else than an exact life in social affairs. My problem is this: for the same length of time, a young man of this neighborhood has been thrusting his attentions upon me until I have at length assented to hearing a classical number with him, knowing that I have an engagement later with the above mentioned. As a result of my living, I thoroly disapprove of my action, tho if I understand rightly society states I have not done wrong. I have made all kind of excuses to the second boy heretofore, as reasons for not going with him, but he has always overruled them and now persists in thinking I am faithless and I have hated for anyone to get the idea that women as a rule are faithless because of mine.

Am I justified in breaking my promise to him to attend this recital? As this boy is a son of my father's friend and as my father has great faith in him, I hat to treat him otherwise than decently.

Thanking you, I am

YOUR READER.

MY dear, what are you trying to say? I find it most difficult to answer your question because I do not understand your letter very well. However, as far as you being justified in breaking your engagement with Young man No. 2, I don't think you are. You accepted his invitation to a recital, and unless you were ill or detained at home, you should not break the engagement. You say you are not in love with the first young man, not even engaged to him, so why not go about with the other men? If you do not chose to go about with young man No. 2 and do not care to be kind and courteous to him because of your father, then the thing for you to do is to tell him you do not care to go about with him. Surely he will not keep on seeking your attentions, if he understands how little you care for him.

Dear Miss Smart:

Please answer the following questions:

Are people having their hair bobbed and will it remain in style long?

What colors are most becoming to a girl with dark hair and dark eyes?

For what is "Nettie" a nick-name?

How is my writing?

Thanking you for your trouble we are

BROWN EYES and BLUE EYES.

Yes, many girls and women are having thei rhair bobbed and my opinion is that bobbed hair will remain as a style for some time. Of course, the fad for bobbed hair is about over the fad being when nearly everyone, regardless of whether it was becoming or not, cut their hair. Many people are having their hair shingled now, instead of the straight bob. I'm told that in one shop in Chicago on a Saturday not long ago, 285 heads of hair were shingled. So you see, what Cricago women and girls feel about the "shingled" style of hair.

Henna, brown, blue and some shades of pink are particularly attractive for a girl who has dark hair and eyes. Blondes wear purple or lavender, various shades of blue, particularly the sage shade, and brown becomingly.

"Ru" or "Ruthie" might be used for Ruth; "Per," "Peggie" are common nicknames for Margaret; "El" is a short name for Eloise; "Jin" or "Jinny" are often used for Virginia; "May" for Mary; "Ann" for Anna; "Jane" or "Janie" for Jeanette "Johnnie" for John; "Fred" or "Freddie" are commonly used for Frederick; "Will," "Willie," "Bill" or "Billy" are short for William and "Ed" or Eddie" are nicknames for Edward.

Good.

LIMA THEATRES AGAIN WILL OFFER VARIETY OF NEW ATTRACTIONS

"Caroline" Breaks In Wednesday on Faurot's Program While New Orpheum Brings Marshall Walker And Company

BY CADJE

THE coming week theatrically offers a contrast to the one just concluded when no new attractions of magnitude played in the city.

With the Faurot booking "Caroline" for Wednesday evening and the New Orpheum promising a week of Marshall Walker et al, it looks like a full week.

While Faurot vaudeville continued to please patrons and Lew Kelly entertained New Orpheum theatregoers for his second week, the train wreck, which darkened the Faurot for a night provided a real disappointment.

The place de resistance for this week will be "Caroline," which is spoken of as another of those Shubert productions with meritorious music, which has been aptly described as another "Blossom Time." This attraction is booked for next Wednesday evening. The bookings of the Faurot are quite numerous, and embrace several reigning hits as well as a number of the most prominent stars. They do not come, however, until early in February and thruout the month. Among these are Ethel Barrymore and Al Jolson. One sterling attraction, however, such as "Caroline" should be sufficient to appease the theatrical appetite for the time being.

The New Orpheum announces Marshall Walker, the composer of several song hits, at the head of his own compnay, which will fill out the entire week. He is presenting a musical melange called "Whiz Bang Revue, in which he is responsible for both book, lyrics and music.

Patrons of that playhouse will find much to amuse them.

"CAROLINE" IS WEEK'S BIG SHOW AT FAUROT

Another Noted Shubert Musical Show Booked Here For Wednesday Night

THERE seems to be a whole lot of credit due the Messrs. Shubert, in the matter of selecting really meritorious things, for the class of their musical offerings. We were all delighted with "Blossom Time" the opus which Dorothy Donnelly so ably combined in the story of Franz Schubert's life and his immortal music. The effort sticks in the memory the more we think about it. It was indeed the most pleasurable musical drama of many years.

Now comes "Caroline." The story goes that J. J. Shubert while on a visit for new and meritorious things in Vienna, heard the music drama, and was so greatly impressed with it he immediately closed with the producers for the American rights. The original production was by Herman Bier and Edward Rideamus. It was of course necessary to localize the plot and action, and so Harry B. Smith and Edward Delaney Dunn, were set to work. Reviewers have concurred in the fact that they have done nothing which will detract from its original value. It is compared to that tremendous success of a few years back "Maytime," and on equality with Schubert's Blossom Time.

The locale is laid near Richmond, Va. during the period immediately after the Civil war. There is the everlasting story of love put in a new frame done delightfully by a master hand for Harry B. Smith is a genius at this sort of painting. But it is the music which smacks of the better kind that has predominated the piece. Even in a close comparison to "Maytime" and "Blossom Time" this musical drama, suffers nothing in comparison.

Briefly the plot is to the effect that Caroline is the penniless niece of Gen. Calhoun and her only friend is Helen, the general's daughter. Helen gets a fortune and her uncle and aunt are anxious that she marry Robert Langdon, of New Orleans. But she has given her heart to Roderick Gray. He goes to South America to make his fortune. A stranger turns up who is taken for Roderick, he allows them to continue under that impression and Caroline is more in love with him than ever. The stranger turns out to be the general's nephew from New Orleans and his unexpected development brings about an unusual ending.

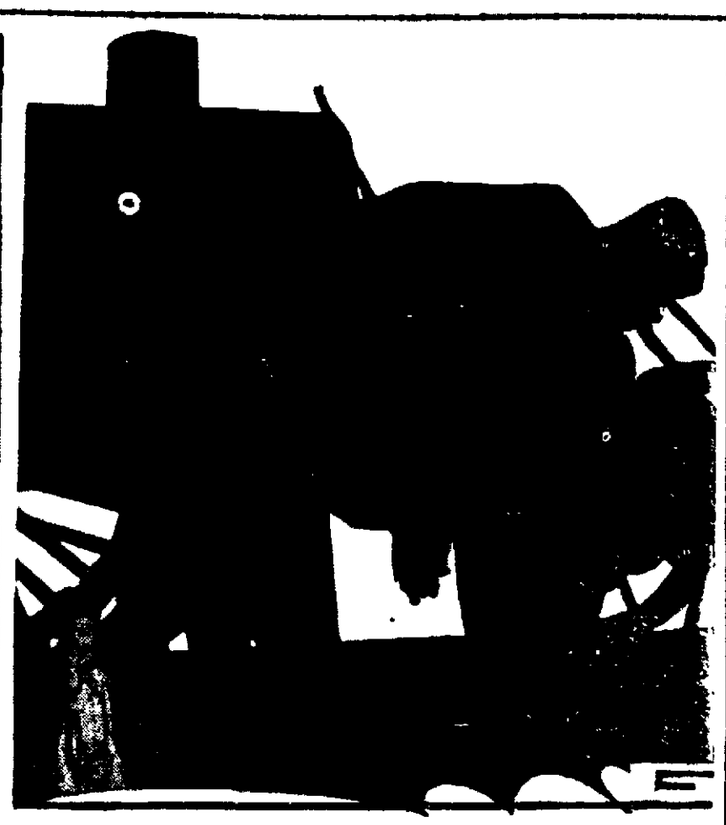

"Caroline," is impersonated by Myrtle Schaaf. She has the distinction of being among the youngest stars who ever essayed a prominent role in Grand Opera with the Metropolitan Opera company. She had gained stellar honors before her nineteenth birthday. Robert Langdon is played by J. Herold Murray, prominent as a light opera singer, and the remainder of the cast is noted. Among them are Harrison Brockbank, Viola Gillette, Rupert Darrell, Violet Carlson, John Wheeler, Lizzie B. Raymond, Ben Linn, Marion DuPont, Peggy O'Neill, Genevieve Burr and a chorus of pretty and capable singers.

VAUDEVILLE AT FAUROT

There should be plenty to amuse theatregoers in the vaudeville bill which will be presented at the Faurot matinee and night Sunday. One of the most unique juggling acts ever seen on the vaudeville stage is presented by Gascoigne, while other pleasing and entertaining acts go to make up an entertainment that will afford anyone who likes a variety bill, a whole lot of enjoyment. Pietro, most prominent artist in the country, on the piano-accordian, and the maker of records for the Victor and Columbia companies is on the bill, and there is Peggy Brooks, and the Alexander Girls, dancers par excellence, all doing their part to make up one of the best vaudeville programs that has been seen in Lima for a long while.

"WHIZ BANG REVUE" MAKES LOCAL DEBUT

New Orpheum's Show For Week Is Musical Comedy By Marshall Walker

BEGINNING Sunday afternoon and lasting thru the week, the New Orpheum will present Marshall Walker in his brand new "Whiz Bang Revue." Walker is a song writer of prominence. He is best known for his 'Pray For the Lights to Go Out," "Somebody's Done Me Wrong," "Save a Little Dram For Me," and "It Takes a Tall, Brown-skin Gal to Make a Preacher Lay His Good Book Down." Walker is responsible for book, lyrics and music of his present offering.

This will be Walker's first appearance in Lima and the first engagement of the "Whiz Bang Revue" in this city. He brings with him not only new faces but also new scenery, new wardrobe, new songs and everything.

Walker and his company will present for the first half of the week starting Sunday a rural musical farce entitled, "Nesting Time." It is said to be replete with clever humor and to carry itself along with high speed with it, snappy songs and dance numbers and its frolicking chorus girls. Thru the whole action of the piece there is also the quaint comicality of the presence of Marshall Walker and the touches of his artistry.

Marshall Walker is one of the most successful song writers, authors and composers of his age. He is especially well-known for song hits and melodies and way he "puts these across" to his audiences is just as clever as the hits themselves.

The local management assures its patrons that this will be found to be one of the best attractions of the season.

"TEMPLE OF VENUS" CONTINUES AT LYRIC

"The Net," Spectacular Drama Of Modern Womanhood Is Coming Tuesday

"THE Temple of Venus" continues into the current week at the Lyric theatre, where it has been pleasing audiences since Friday because of its unusual scenic beauty. On Tuesday it will be repaced by "The Net," a new William Fox production with Barbara Castleton Raymond Bloomer and a notable cast.

The grandeur of the settings is due to the fact that the picture was filmed on Santa Cruz Island in the Pacific Ocean, revealing the splendor of its grottoes and idyllic beauty of its caves and beaches. Amid these surroundings, hundreds of beautiful girls in the most exquisite bathing costumes appear like water nymphs.

Mary Philbin and Phyllis Haver star in the picture, with David Butler in the leading male role. The story deals with the contrast in the lives of the girls, one a native of a lonely island, the other a New York debutante, one surrounded with the beauty of nature, the other living in the luxury and splendor evolved by man.

A rich love story traces thru the film and the cast presents it with remarkable effect. The cast is one of the largest ever assembled for a similar picture.

Many of the members lived on the island during the period of filming, occupying tents and cottages.

"The Net" is heralded as a spectacular drama of modern womanhood. Presented on a very lavish scale, it is said to be a veritable fashion show of gorgeous gowns displayed midst scenes of riotous revelry. Its superlative cast and fascinating story makes it an attraction that every movie fan will want to see.

At the Rialto

ANOTHER Charles Jones thriller opened Saturday at the Rialto theatre and proved one of the most exciting features this dynamic star has appeared in for some time. Jones starts the picture off by indulging in one of those free for all fist fights in a typical western cabaret. The story whirls on at terrific pace which never slackens.

Ruth Clifford, leading lady, adds an appealing romantic touch to this story of action and hard knocks. Maurice Flynn, the six foot hero, contributes brawn and good looks to splendid acting. Others in the cast include Kathleen Key, Hody Kirkland, and Eugene Pallette.

The climax in this picture ranks with the best ever seen on the silver sheet. A gigantic avalanche crashes down a hillside completely burying the cabin wherein is being dramatized one of the biggest moments in the lives of the three principals. Tons and tons of dirt and rock hurtle to the cabin far below. How the players escape from certain death contributes a breathless moment until the final closeup shows Jones embracing the girl of his heart.

SILVER SHEET BILLS OF WEEK PRESENT COMEDY AND DRAMA

"The Net" Follows "The Temple of Venus" at Lyric, Buster Keaton Comes to Quilna and Thomas Meighan to Majestic

(BY GERTRUDE GILLHAM)

WHILE local movie patrons during the present week will be able to choose their shadowland entertainment from a pleasing and varied program, nevertheless, the attractions as a whole, fall short of the standard of the recent past.

Two William Fox productions hold the Lyric screen during the week. The first, "The Temple of Venus," with Mary Philbin, appears until Tuesday and will be followed by "The Net," co-starring Barbara Castleton and Raymond Bloomer.

Comedy predominates at the Quilna this week, where two favorite stars appear. Buster Keaton, the stoneface comedian, will be seen in his newest comedy, "Our Hospitality," for the first half of the week. In the supporting cast is Buster's family, including his wife, Natalie Talmadge, and his son, Buster II. Baby Peggy comes to the Quilna screen on Thursday in "The Darling of New York," her first big picture.

Thomas Meighan is the star in "The Ne'er Do Well," appearing for the first three days of the week at the Majestic theatre. Hoot Gibson will be seen in "Out of Luck" on Tuesday and Wednesday and Reginald Denny in "The Abysmal Brute" for the remainder of the week.

"OUR HOSPITALITY" IS NEW QUILNA OFFERING

Real Comedy Promised As Film Opens Today With Buster Keaton As Principal

BUSTER KEATON, celebrated as the comedian who can keep an audience in roars of laughter without ever cracking a smile himself, comes to the Quilna today in his newest comedy, "Our Hospitality," a Metro production that is not only a novelty, but a great laugh getter.

Every opportunity to extract fun from the feuds, fashions and foibles of 1830 has been seized. There is the first trip on the first railroad ever constructed in America and in this scene the exact model of the old "Rocket" is used. The incidents of this clever tale pile up to a riotous climax, but it is something more than mere buffoonery. It brings to the screen a phase of American history that has heretofore been untouched by the camera.

The cast is thoroly Keatonesque. Besides Buster there is his wife, Natalie Talmadge; his son, Buster II, and his father, Joe Keaton. The program will also contain the Quilna News, Aesop Fables, and the funny "Dippy-Do Dads."

The Quilna also has an unusual attraction for Thursday when the "million dollar kid" Baby Peggy, appears in her first feature photoplay "The Darling of New York." It is a sparkling story of New York life with many interesting and sensational angles, all built around the advantages of one of the cutest youngsters ever seen in pictures. The picture is also notable from the strength of the supporting cast which includes Gladys Brockwell, Sheldon Lewis, Max Davidson, Frank Currier, Carl Stockdale and many other well-known players. Added features include the Quilna News, and Lyman Howe's "Hodge Podge."

First Performance of New Skit This Afternoon

His new seven-reel comedy feature, "Our Hospitality" which comes to the Quilna Theatre today, is an attempt to bring to the screen an historically accurate picture of life in the United States of 1830, the days when the first railroads were being built.

"I've heard mothers complain from time to time," said Mr. Keaton, "that their children were getting nothing but buffoonery in comedies. Consequently, I've tried to do something that will be educational, without losing anything in the matter of laughs."

Soon after the engagement of Miss Burns to Mr. Foss was announced by her mother, Mrs. J. Burns, of Oak Park, Ill., Mae was invited to spend the week-end at the home of the parents of her fiance at Nyack, N. Y.

While she was there an incident occurred that not only demonstrated Mae Burns' keen sense of humor but also proved to her fiance and the members of his family that her accomplishments were not confined to being beautiful.

It was on a Saturday evening and the Foss family and Miss Burns were dressing preparatory to starting for the home of a neighbor to which they had been invited to dinner, when the telephone rang. On the other end of the line was a very much perturbed prospective hostess. Her cook had walked out!

It was extremely embarrassing for all concerned.

Mae Burns had just entered the room, a vision of loveliness. She was arrayed in a dinner gown of shimmering white satin with a corsage of orchids. A bandeau of diamonds and emeralds encircled her stately head in a vain attempt to confine the fluffy, auburn hair.

"Please present my excuses to the lady," she whispered to Mrs. Foss. "Tell her that I was suddenly called back to New York and that you and the other members of the family will come and take 'pot luck'"

"But, my dear——"

"Please, please," pleaded Mae Burns, and the message was finally sent.

Without a word of additional explanation, other than to secure a promise from the Foss family that they would keep their engagement, Miss Burns retired to her room.

While the hostess of the dinner party was wondering how she could get together even a "pot luck" dinner for the Foss family, her telephone rang.

Landing on Your Opponent's Jaw Is Not in Zbyszko's Repertoire and He Thinks It Constitutes Extreme Cruelty.

And Whoever Heard of Kicking Your Adversary on the Shins When Catch-as-Catch-Can Rules Apply?

What Would "Strangler" Lewis Say If He Saw "The Terrible Pole" Washing Dishes in the Kitchen Sink?

The "Cruelty" Charges of the Heavy-Weight Champion Against His 90 lb Wife

All the Rules of Catch-as-Catch-Can Were Violated by the Dainty Cuban Senorita When the Rift Came That Ended a Strange Romance

WHEN David slew Goliath there was no end of talk about his mighty deed.

Even to this day the story of the little fellow's prowess is as fascinating and interesting as it was thousands of years ago.

David, the giant-killer, has ever been a hero.

But it may be just as well that he didn't live during the modernist movement. If he had, some husky, boastful man, towering over him, might look at him condescendingly and say:

"Huh! That's nothing!" And then add, with a discreet glance around to see that a rolling-pin wasn't coming in his direction, "You ought to see my wife!"

There's Wladek Zbyszko, for instance.

Wladek Zbyszko (you might just as well try to pronounce it first as last) is some time the champion heavyweight wrestler of the world. He's as big as the side of a house—or, at least, he looks that big on the mat. "Strangler" Lewis, whose terrible head-lock makes them all quaver, was thrown into a trembling heap by the Polish Hercules (that's what the sporting writers call him), and Joe Stecher, once the champion of the world, was floored by him.

He's the terror of them all—all except his wife, and she isn't a wrestler.

Zbyszko, when he is down to wrestling trim without an ounce of fat on him, weighs 220 pounds and stands six feet two in his socks.

His wife tips the beam at ninety pounds, and if she stands on her tiptoes she is five feet tall.

He charges that she has been cruel and abusive to him!

There is no record of the height or weight of Goliath. Nor of David. But from all accounts Goliath towered over David as much as Zbyszko did over his wife. David slew Goliath, and Zbyszko's wife threw such a scare into him that he prayed the court for relief.

There's some things that a man just can't endure. For instance, if Zbyszko's wife gave him a terrible look and ordered him to stand in the corner with his face to the wall for five minutes—well, it was humiliating, perhaps, but what could a fellow do? Once, it is alleged, when he was standing thus, with his face to the wall, he did peek around, and almost suffered the fate of Lot's wife. He didn't try it again.

Being kicked in the shins isn't much fun, either.

And if the terrible "Strangler" Lewis had seen the Polish Hercules with a kitchen apron tied about his 42-inch waist while he washed the supper dishes in the kitchen sink, what do you suppose he would have said to that? Possibly, under the circumstances, he'd have done the same as Zbyszko did, with the modernist feminine David standing on guard to see that there was no slinking. It was almost as bad as to have her pull your good ear—with the attendant danger of turning that one into a cauliflower, too.

This now-shattered romance of the Zbyszkos started in Havana three years ago.

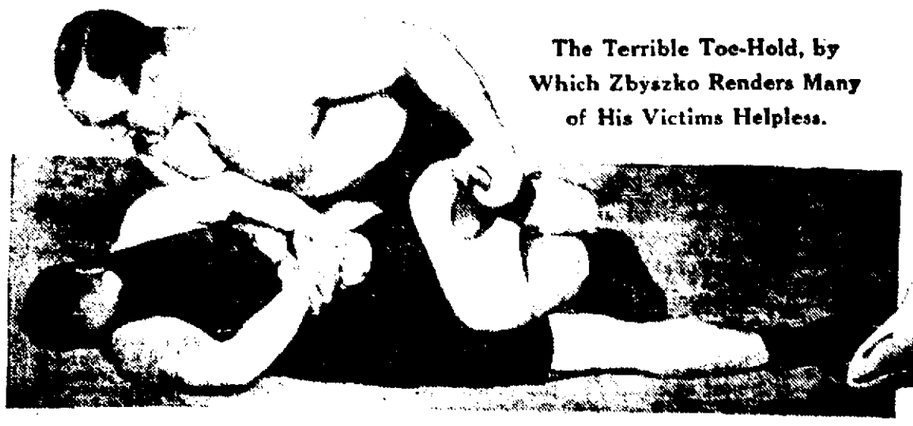

The wrestler had gone to Cuba and appeared in bouts in all the principal cities. One day in Havana the modern giant saw a doll-girl on the street. She was so dainty and chic and beautiful that Zbyszko didn't eat, nor rest, nor sleep until he had obtained an introduction to her. She was Senorita Amelie Diaz, not yet nineteen years old, with thick strands of hair as black as a raven's wing, eyes as dark as night that snapped and danced and flashed fire one minute, and were as limpid and trusting and gentle as those of a dachshund the next. And her figure, well, it was such a figure as would have thrown Milo into ecstasies, much less a more material individual like Wladek Zbyszko.

"Thick strands of hair as black as a raven's wing and eyes as dark as night. She was Carmen incarnate."

Wladek Zbyszko. Weight, 220 Lbs. Height, 6 Ft. 2 In. Neck, 22 In. Chest, 54 In. Waist, 42 In. Biceps, 22 In. Forearm, 18 In. Wrist, 13 In. Thigh, 31 In. Calf, 19 In.

The Terrible Toe-Hold, by Which Zbyszko Renders Many of His Victims Helpless.

Wrapped about her graceful, slender figure was a gorgeous mantilla, and in the folds of her blue-black hair a red, red rose, and a great comb. She was Carmen incarnate. As she flashed a flirtatious glance at her toreador, Zbyszko (suppose we call him Zby, as the sporting writers do to make it easier) was so enthralled that he swore there was neither man nor bull in the world that he wouldn't throw to win the lady's favor.

Zby made a record in Cuba that has never been equalled. The mighty giants of the island fell before him like toy tenpins. And at every one of his bouts the beautiful, doll-like senorita lent him encouragement with her dazzling smile.

There was a fast and furious courtship, which culminated in the marriage of the giant wrestler and the tiny Cuban beauty. The ceremony was performed on August 24, 1921, by Judge Bosch, of the Civil Court of Arroyo Naranjo, Cuba, and was followed by a great celebration at the home of the bride.

Immediately after their marriage Zby brought his baby-doll bride to the land of his adoption and the scene of his athletic triumphs. The Cuban beauty loved the sea, and the giant wrestler took her to Old Orchard Beach, Me., where they established their home.

Every morning the society folk from Boston and New York, spending the waning Summer at the fashionable resort, would eagerly watch for the appearance of the big athlete and the tiny, beautiful girl. They were as odd in their opposites as any couple ever seen. Men raved over the Cuban girl, and even the women admitted that she was the most beautiful creature in her dainty loveliness that had ever appeared on Old Orchard Beach.

Apparently they were very happy—she proud of the big man, he idolizing her.

When Winter came and the beach knew the couple no more, Zby and his wife were rarely seen. Then came rumors that all was not as it should be in the little cottage that they kept as their home, even after the Summer visitors departed.

Zbyszko's professional engagements took him away for a considerable part of the time. When he did come back the neighbors remarked (that is, the women neighbors) on what a model husband the big athlete had become. Every day they would see him sweeping and helping with the work about the house, and one day someone reported having seen him scrubbing the back porch.

"Isn't he just splendid," said the neighbor women, but several of the men were heard to mutter something about "poor hen-pecked fish."

Then came the time when a grocery boy hurried snickeringly to the post-office with a story about seeing the mighty Zbyszko wearing an apron and washing the dinner dishes, while the dainty, tiny wife stood over him rather threateningly—something after the manner of the little woman in the lions' cage who makes the big cats do all kind of unusual and undignified things.

Also there were reports from passers-by of hearing cries of protest from the cottage—of a big male voice uttering in a pained way, "Ouch, o-u-c-h," and of a very girlish voice saying a whole lot of things in Spanish that the listeners could not understand.

After one of these occurrences Zbyszko went on a tour and remained away a long time, to the great humiliation of "Strangler" Ed. Lewis, Joe Stecher, John Olin, Earl Caddock and some of the other top-notch wrestlers who held, or had held, various championships. He cleaned up them all and was proclaimed the world's champion.

Then one day, with the plaudits of the world ringing in his ears, Zby trekked back to Old Orchard Beach.

There was no brass band to meet him.

In a short time he had resumed the old life again, and again the rumors of his dodging rolling-pins were current.

It could not last—of course not.

Finally the mother of the little Cuban woman came and took her back to Havana. Almost at the same time Zbyszko instituted divorce proceedings against his wife in the Supreme Court in York County, Mo. The 220-pound champion wrestler charges his petite 90-pound wife with cruel and abusive treatment.

Papers in the suit were served on Mrs. Zbyszko at the home of her mother in Havana. The case is expected to be heard within the next few weeks, and it is said that Mrs. Zbyszko will not contest the action.

Since the suit was filed Zby has had another most successful tour, during which he made them all look foolish—all except Mrs. Susie Spith, who, it seems, was his housekeeper in New York. According to the story he told in the Manhattan police station, Susie got away with $10,000 worth of diamonds belonging to Zbyszko without notifying him of her intentions of doing so.

"It's a tough world for the men," sighs the heavyweight champion, who hasn't a single diamond left, but has a very vivid remembrance of a former housekeeper and of the "cruel and abusive treatment" alleged to have been administered to him by his 90-pound wife.

Was the Dropped Sword a Crazed Lover's Revenge?

Why Paris Sees a Shattered Romance and a Sinister Plot Behind the Suit of Its Loveliest Tragedienne for the Loss of Her $2,000 Ear.

Madame Silvain, Distinguished Star of the Comedie Francaise in Paris, Who Was Appearing in "Damocles," Famous Greek Drama, When the Weapon Suspended Above Her Head Fell, Severing Her Ear. She Charged Malicious Colleagues Had Cut the Cord, and Asked $2,000 Damages.

Beautiful Madame Silvain Walked Across the Stage Until She Reached a Spot Beneath the Sword. As She Stopped to Deliver Her Lines the Long Blade Quivered and Sped Downward—Straight Toward Her Unprotected Head.

"The Sword of Damocles," Painted by the Celebrated British Artist, Herbert Gandy. After Damocles, the Courtier, Had Spoken of the Life of Ease of His Sovereign, Dionysius, the Latter Invited Him to a Sumptuous Banquet, at Which He Found Himself Seated Beneath a Naked Sword Suspended by a Single Hair, Typifying a King's Precarious Position.

PARIS.

THE scene was the stage of famous Parisian theatre where the Greek drama, "Damocles," was being enacted. Madame Silvain, distinguished and beautiful tragedienne, advanced to deliver her lines beneath the gleaming, naked sword of the play, suspended high above her head by a single cord.

The plot (as most theatre-goers know) concerns the ancient Greek ruler, Dionysius, and his courtier, Damocles. The latter had spoken in extravagant terms of the happiness and life of ease of his sovereign, so the king invited him to a sumptuous banquet, where he was forced to sit beneath the deadly sword, hanging by a hair, thus symbolizing a ruler's precarious position in life.

Madame Silvain, most important feminine character in the drama, now stood beneath the weapon that was to menace Damocles a few minutes later. But before she could deliver her speech and step back, something terrible happened. The great sword suddenly dropped toward her unprotected head, skimmed by the side of her face, and stuck upright in the floor of the stage.

The Parisians knew this was no part of the play, yet they thought she had escaped injury. Then they saw the pain in her eyes, the whitening face and the trickle of blood that splotched her left cheek. They heard a shriek from someone else on the stage as Madame Silvain swayed and fell into the arms of a stage-hand who rushed from the wings. The house was in an uproar, the curtain was rung down, and announcement was made that the play could not continue.

Not until the next day was the extent of the accident known; the left ear of Madame Silvain had been completely severed by the terrible sword of Damocles. Parisians talked of nothing else—their idol, Silvain the beautiful, was disfigured for life. She might never again charm them, move them to tears, by her marvelous mimetic art.

But not one of them dreamed that the falling sword was anything but an accident until the tragedienne brought action in the courts of France against the theatrical company that employed her. She charged that "someone" had maliciously cut the cord! She declared she had been made ridiculous forever and she asked $2,000 damages.

So! said Paris, here is drama within drama! "Someone!" Who could it be? The word ran up and down the boulevards; and in the cafes where gather the devotees of the various arts, the intellectuals and the rich Americans, the sinister plot against Silvain caused all tongues to wag.

Those who knew the actress best began to recount her history and the last of her admirers. They wondered whether she had any enemies and if so which one could have conceived so fiendish a crime.

M. Silvain, Husband and Co-Star of the Famous Actress Who Lost an Ear During a Tragic Performance of the Greek Drama, "Damocles."

Then someone remembered the strange story of the man who had fallen violently in love with the temperamental actress several years before and had been just as decidedly spurned by her. Was he in any way responsible for the tragic episode? Paris, always anxious to see romance in any situation, saw it even in the queer loss of the $2,000 ear. Bit by bit the fragments of this story of Silvain's repulsed admirer were pieced together to form a tale as follows:

The man in question was a Polish count, who came to Paris just after the war and fell in love with Silvain of the stormy brow. But Paris only laughed at his obvious attempts to gain her favor, for it was well known that the actress lived happily with her husband.

Silvain, although undeniably beautiful, is no longer in the heyday of her youth. In fact, for fifteen or twenty years both she and her husband have been stars of tragedy in Paris and have appeared together in many plays.

She is a Junoesque type, splendid and Amazonian rather than petite, winsome and appealing. Her voice is like a gorgeous musical instrument, rich in inflections and with sombre quality that fits in admirably with her playing of tragic roles. Her skin is of the whitest, her eyes blue-black and sparkling, her hair a mass of jet magnificence.

Silvain's admirers were legion, her lovers, one—her husband. Hence the incredulous smiles that the boulevardiers gave the luckless Polish nobleman when they discovered he was attempting to shower attentions on their favorite.

Yet the man seemed to have no discernment of his true position. Each night he came to the theatre and sat in a box with folded arms, gazing at his adored one across the footlights. Between each act he walked in the foyer, apparently totally unaware of the crowds or the amused whispers. His eyes were fixed at times to almost a glaring steadiness.

Everyone knew that Madame Silvain refused to receive his flowers and that she had declined to see him after their first several meetings. It was not strange that people wondered if this disgruntled would-be lover's moodiness might not be touched by madness.

He was such a dark, silent figure, with his pointed beard and his long, bony white fingers. His adoration seemed to be a fixed idea that was growing alarmingly. On one occasion it was said that he flew into a rage and attacked a stage doorkeeper who refused to let him into the theatre to see Silvain.

Of late, however, the scorned lover of Silvain has kept in the background. Not for some time has he been seen at the theatre where the tragedienne revealed her art, nor did he frequent the popular cafes.

The sudden release of the sword of Damocles, and the charges of the actress, have revived keen interest in the Polish count who loved her madly and unsuccessfully. Her admirers do not assert that he may be the villain responsible for the crime. Ah, no, nothing so definite.

They say a repulsed lover COULD plan such an exquisite and cruel revenge. It is not without precedent. Throughout the ages when men have been denied the possession of beauty they have often tried to mar it, sometimes by hideous and diabolical means.

In the meantime the question awaits settlement by the courts of France, and while lovely Madame Silvain lives in retirement—minus an ear—Paris waits breathlessly for the trial of the suit. Then, it is expected, the secret of the severed cord and the falling blade will be told, the gossip of the boulevards may become fact, and the story of the strangest lover's vengeance in history will be unfolded as part of the official court record.

What Well Dressed Women Will Wear

Copyright, 1924, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

By MARY MARSHALL
Eight Years Chief Assistant to Anne Rittenhouse

The Dance of Today Influences the Dress of Tomorrow

"MOST potent has been the fad for dancing in moulding the fashion for women's evening clothes. And the clothes that are to bring in the wings waiting for their cue to step out on the stage of fashions for spring show the working of this influence even more than any that have gone before.

You may not dance and you may never intend to dance, but willy-nilly you follow a mode in evening clothes that has been very much influenced by the dance fad which shows no sign of waning. And though reformers look upon the modern dances as perverters of the young and demoralizers of the middle aged menaces of colleges and home wreckers, the very interesting fact remains that these new evening clothes that you may be wearing in a week or so are modest even to demureness.

In the first place the neck is seldom low in front. True, a woman may show her back nearly to the waist, but her partner in the dance usually sees fabric to the collar bone. This new decolletage, high at the front and low at the back, has been explained thus. In dancing it is the back of the frock which shows most and should have most attention. Hence one should have one's bodice cut low in back and should follow the French fad of wearing necklaces and other jeweled adornment at the back. Just possibly it is also for the sake of presenting a demure appearance to one's partner.

Fichus Fasten At Back

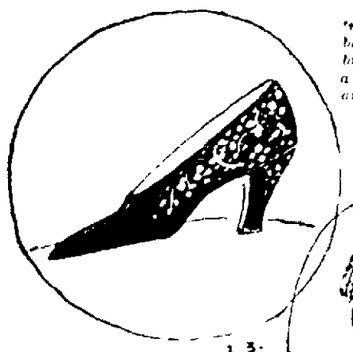

Yteb is one of the French designers who has been making evening frocks low at the back. Paquin is another. One clever dressmaker makes a frock with the high neck at front and the deep V used by Paquin and then crosses the back with strings of rhinestone beads from the shoulders to the end of the V. With black velvet gowns the deep back decolletage is sometimes filled in with a single thickness of flesh colored chiffon, a device which makes a dance frock more secure.

Sometimes there is a fullness of the material at the back with a fold that starts at the neck hood. And in some of the very recent organdie and tulle frocks for young girls there are lace or organdie fichus and scarf quite suggestive of mid Victorian modesty that they are fastened in the center of the back. What would our mid Victorian ancestors have said to that. Yet the effect is charming, even demure. One such lace fichu posed over a flounced frock of silver cloth has artificial roses tucked in the knot of lace and loops and long ends hanging almost to the hem at the back.

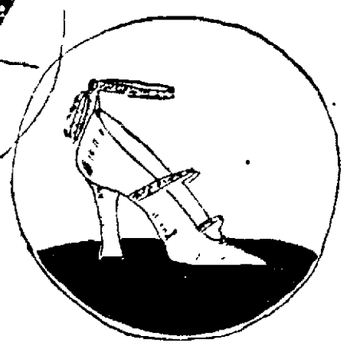

Bustle-like Bows

The bustle seemed not to linger long on the threshold of fashion last spring. It was rather politely hissed on. However there are sash bows on some of the very newest dance frocks that are quite bustle like in proportions. They are far more convenient placed thus for dancing than the enormous bows on the side of the hips which young girls liked last spring.

Even the hair arrangement seems to have been developed with this idea of putting one's best foot backward. With the period bouffant frock which is unmistakably gaining ground with the younger women the favorite hair arrangement is a close adaptation of the mode of 1830 or thereabouts. The bandeau drawn over the forehead is quite inappropriate here. In fact the forehead is left bare and the hair is drawn back as severely as one's face will permit. The hair is knotted or rolled closely at the back and secured by a large flat richly ornamented comb or by a half circle wreath of flowers.

A. 3.

We apply different standards of good looks from those of a decade or more ago, says a certain man of affairs who finds more diversion in watching his own children dance than in dancing himself.

"Once a girl's face was most important," said he. "At least we looked at that first. Now that is an afterthought. A trim ankle, a shapely foot, a lithe body seem to count more with the present generation of young men who rate girls first according to their ability to dance."

This is a fact that has much to do with the fashioning of women's clothes. Women are as exacting in the finish of the edge of a skirt as in the line of the neck. They are as eager to have a frock becoming to their ankles and feet as to their faces—if you can use the word in that connection. And from thinking the back of the frock is as unimportant as that of a paper doll they have come to look upon it as of quite as much importance as the front.

Next week: New Era In Sports Wear Launched At Palm Beach.

When You Dress for a Dance

ALTHOUGH there is a decided revival of black for daytime wear not much black is worn in the evening. Light and brilliant colors are worn, and white is sometimes chosen in a billowing frock of tulle.

There are many straight line frocks of beaded chiffon, and in these green seems to be a favorite color.

Apricot and cyclamin are two of the colors that are effective for evening.

Gold and silver brocades are still good. Silver is favored over gold, especially in Paris.

Once in a while a brown evening frock appears, but it is always elaborately trimmed to take from it any possibility of being an afternoon frock.

Evening capes are very important. In France they are so important that women often wear them into the dancing room, even when they are of fur.

For Palm Beach there are evening capes of taffeta silk, of dyed lace, of chiffon posed over silk banded with rich brocaded ribbon, and of several layers of chiffon or georgette of different colors, one over the other.

Huge bow of hazel-nut colored taffeta and colored ribbon embroidered in silver trims this debutante's frock of white tulle over white moire. This is from Madeline et Madeline.

FACTS OF FASHION

"PERIODS" NOW IN VOGUE

THE comment is going about that the DIRECTOIRE mode is frequently suggested in the fashions soon to be launched. This is due, of course, to the recent Directoire ball in Paris when clothes of this period were worn by those present.

This refers to the period between 1795 and 1799 when Napoleon was winning his laurels in Italy and Egypt, just after his marriage to Josephine. It was a short but brilliant period followed a little later by the EMPIRE, which is another fashion period frequently referred to. This lasted until 1815. The most striking characteristic of these periods probably was the raised waistline and the straightness and scantness of silhouette. During the Directoire the skirts were more frequently trained while in the Empire they became increasingly short. Interestingly enough the suits and frocks mentioned now as showing a Directoire influence are not short waisted—quite the opposite. The wide revers, high stock collars, wide cuffs on long narrow sleeves and the double-breasted coats are some of the notes that have been revived.

The period of 1840, spoken of last year as the GAVARNI period, has had some influence recently. Skirts were wide, sleeves also wide with drooping shoulders, and skirts short—much shorter than those of the Second Empire period.

There is still reference to the MEDIAEVAL or MOYEN AGE mode—which refers always to the fashion for the one-piece, closely hanging robe worn at the time, often combined with the use of elaborate metallic ceintures or girdles.

The 1880 period, too, has been mentioned in connection with the fashions of recent months. This is the period of the bustle and closely fitted bodice, with skirts and sleeves clinging very closely.

In the realm of hats the Directoire influence has been at work for several seasons. The cloche, small poke and close-fitting turban are all characteristic of this period. In other ways the fashions of today may be compared to those of the two Napoleonic periods.

"Not only did corsets and underpetticoats disappear," remarks one critic," but further garments were also discarded—the lady of society wore rings on her bare feet while silk tights and a transparent chemise open to the knee composed the remainder of her costume." And again, "Body and skirt were made in one piece and hung close and straight like an under garment."

The SECOND EMPIRE period, still spoken of in connection with the bouffant skirts and close fitting waists seen on many of the evening frocks worn by younger women, was the period in French history when Louis Napoleon was Emperor of France. The Empress Eugenie was in a measure leader of French fashion at this time. This period corresponds to the mid-Victorian period in England.

Next Week: Materials the Milliners are using.

GLOVES IN THE EVENING

In Paris gloves for evening have not been revived as they have in this country. However, here the revival is not complete. They are seldom worn for dancing, and hardly at all on any occasion by younger women.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

A novelist, seeking nocturnal adventure, leafs one night upon a bench in Hyde Park, London. Coming toward him he sees a little man carrying a huge bundle on his shoulder. At Victoria Gate the man is challenged by a policeman, curious to know the contents of the bundle.

At first the little man is impudent but finally tells the policeman he is on his way to his barber shop in Acton. In the sack he has a wax figure of a woman.

Out of curiosity the novelist follows the man to learn whether he is speaking the truth. When the man turns into a direction opposite to the route to Acton he challenges him. The novelist offers the man five pounds if he will report with him to the police station. He notices that the man's finger nails are stained with machine oil.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

THE WAX LADY

A glow of hate hung in his eyes; if he had had a weapon I should have suffered; indeed, his arm made a movement as if to strike, but he realized that I had eight inches and 40 or 50 pounds weight to spare. So the shoulder I held struggled, then subsided. In a sulky tone he said: "I had to tell the cop a tale. I don't see no 'arm in telling you I ain't a 'airdresser. I'm an engine cleaner."

"That's better. Well, what do you want with this lay figure, then? Are you going to make a mascot of it for an engine?"

"No."

"Still you're telling lies, and taking risks for it. You seem rather attached to it. You tell me you paid ten shillings for it?"

"Yes."

"That's cheap; at least I suppose so, never having bought one myself. What do you think it's worth?"

"Oh, I dunno."

"Let's walk along and talk about . . . We went toward the west. Think again. How much do you think it would cost new?"

"Couple of pounds."

"Would it indeed? Look here: I've taken a fancy to it. I'll give you five pounds for it as it stands."

"I ain't selling."

"You're not selling for five pounds a thing you can buy new for two pounds. Really this is very interesting. The police . . ."

"Oh, 'ang it. There you are, talking about the cops again."

"I've got to. You've stolen that thing. You're a thief."

"Oh are you calling thief?"

"You." In a low tone, I added: "If you tell me the truth I'll let you off. But just one more lie, and I'll hand over."

There was a silence. Finally the man cleared his throat, and in a gruff voice said. "Look 'ere, guv'nor, I don't want to be 'ard on a poor working man. You say you want to buy the thing. Well, I ain't sold of it. I don't mind selling it, but I couldn't let it go for five pounds."

"Say a undred pounds."

I laughed: "Now, my man, I'm afraid you've given yourself away. Tell me why this figure's worth a hundred pounds. Otherwise, off we go to the police station."

There was a struggle in the man's mind. He probably thought of running away, but he moved toward the road, but I stepped on the other side of him. He must have decided to trust me, for in a gloomy tone he muttered: "You're a gentleman." At last, with fine frankness, he said: "I'll tell you all about it. But I can't do it 'ere. Someone might come along. I'll show you something. Let's go up that street." He nodded toward Inverness Terrace. "There'll be a garden or something." I followed him in silence, until we reached an empty house. We were fortunate; the front garden was separated from the road by tall shrubs. Behind some of these we established ourselves. Again the sack was undone, the ghastly figure exposed, looking strangely human and surprised.

"I got the swag in 'ere," said the man. "Fact is, a friend of mine and me 'ave opened a little crib tonight. Do you know Charlie Vill, the barber?"

"Of course I know Charleville." Indeed this was the name of the fashionable hairdresser in London, whose shop has stood at the corner for more than half a century.

"Well, it's like this. Charlie Vill ain't only a barber. He does a bit of business with the fashionable dames while he's doing their 'air; now and then one of them gets into a bit of a mess, cards, and champagne wine, all sorts of things. You know," he went on with a confidential smile. "So they don't want to be seen coming out . . ."

"Of a pawnbroker's. I understand."

"You see what I mean. They takes all sorts of stuff to Charlie Vill, valuable trinkets, knick-knacks what they pinch in their own drawing-rooms, and 'e lends them money on it. Oh, 'e's a fly customer; cent per cent is what he charges them."

"I see. You and your friends indulged in a little burglary at Charleville's tonight. But I don't quite see why you took this young lady with you."

"Well, it's like this, guv'nor. I expect you've 'ad no experience of crib cracking, 'ave you? If you'd done a stretch, same as I have, all along o' not carrying a sack full of money, and things like that. You got to be prepared. So when we'd got all the stuff together, my mate and I we didn't know what to do; there was jewelry, that's nothing; one can put that in one's pocket. But there was lots of other stuff; gold snuff-boxes, silver sauce boats, combs all over diamonds. It would have broken my 'eart to leave it. So my mate, 'e 'ad an idea. We got 'old of two of these 'ere figures in the middle of the stand is empty. So we shared out, and we each put a half in a lay figure. Then we put 'em into the sacks which we'd brought with us, because you never know, and off we goes, each our own way. Like that, when that cop started asking questions, 'e didn't tumble to it." He pointed to the ground: "And there's my 'alf. If you say the word, you and me'll 'ave a 'undred pounds."

It was very tempting to arrest the man forthwith; no doubt, by this means all the property would be recovered, since the other man could be found. But I felt curious; after all, I knew many ladies who had their apartments in Charleville; some were hard up; one of them had recently received from me a few valuable little presents which it would be amusing to redeem. So I said: "No, I'm not going to buy a pig in a poke. I don't mind doing a little business with you: if I think the stuff's worth it, I'll give you a hundred pounds; I can't get caught, so I don't mind."

He twinkled, recognizing a fellow crook, dragged at the canvas that was roughly nailed to the bottom of the figure, pulled it off, thrust his hand up the figure, shook it; then, his mouth fallen open, he turned to me and said. "There ain't nothing in it'"

II

For a moment the air was filled with the thin sound of his misery. However, he had said about a dozen times that he didn't know how it could have happened, I decided to be a little rougher with him.

"Look here, my man," I said. "You've tried to play a dirty trick on me. You've tried to get a hundred pounds out of me by making me believe that in this figure there was a lot of valuable stuff, and . . ."

"But there was."

"Don't talk nonsense."

"It must have dropped out." He searched the sack furiously.

"What sort of fool do you take me for? How could the things fall out? You've nailed the canvas bottom on again? There never was anything in the figure; the only thing that upsets me is that it's hardly any use handing you over to the police, since you haven't got any stolen goods. I think of course you've got the figure; that's probably stolen goods. I think I'll fool you for this."

"Don't do that, guv'nor," implored the little man. "I think I know 'ow it 'appened. I'm a bigger fool than anybody'd think and I'll tell you why. I put the stuff in with my own 'ands. Would I tell you a story like that if it weren't true?"

"Indeed I don't know."

"What do you think I'd tell you I cracked a crib for if it weren't true? It's the sort of thing a cove boasts about to a stranger, is it?"

"That may be. But you say you think you know how it happened?"

"Well, guv'nor, I don't know, but I think it must 'ave been like this. I took my ale, and my mate took 'is 'alf. We each got one of these 'ere figures off the floor. I filled mine. I 'ad to take the canvas off the bottom first, but I put it on again after. There was about a dozen of them figures there, waiting to 'ave 'air on. What I think's happened is that I picked up one of them lay figures that was empty. And mine, what's got the stuff in it is in Charlie Vill's back shop now. Oh my! this is a go'"

"I shouldn't wonder," I remarked. "It seems very likely. I suppose you were in rather a hurry."

"One always is in a 'urry in our business. My mate 'ad been nearly two hours opening the safe, and it 'ad got on my nerves like. When I'd got my figure full, I didn't 'ang about, I can tell you. I just 'opped it." Once more he expressed his misery, his resentment against fate, until I stopped him:

"Look here," I said, "this is all very well, but the fact remains that you've left the stuff behind, and there's no chance of your going to get it."

"Of course there ain't; it's too late now; I 'aven't the nerve to risk it, and as for tomorrow night, they'll 'ave 'alf a dozen watchmen, with 'alf a dozen guns, so that it don't 'appen again when it's already 'appened."

AFTER AN OPERATION

Mrs. Wilke Couldn't Get Back Her Strength Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rochester, Minnesota.—"I had a very serious operation and it seemed as if I could not get my health back after it. I suffered with pain almost constantly. My sister came to help take care of me, and she was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nervousness and a run-down condition. She had me try some of it, and in a very few days' time I began to feel better. In two weeks I hardly knew myself and after taking a couple of bottles more I was up and helping around, and now I am strong and healthy again and am still taking it. It is a pleasure for me to write this to you, and I hope that many other women who are suffering like I was will find out about your medicine. I will give any information I possibly can."—Mrs. JAMES WILKE, 933 E. Center Street, Rochester, Minn.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Wilke.

"I wish you wouldn't ask me, Leslie," said Jack when I asked him why I should not speak to Ruth Ellington again.

"I shall certainly not ask you, but I will demand that you explain."

"Ruth Ellington is a thief, Leslie."

"I don't believe it."

"Oh, I knew you would say that, but I have proof. I wish you would open your wall safe and see what you find there."

"Why do you ask me to do this, Jack? That is my own individual possession and no one has access to it except myself."

"So you have have told me before, Leslie, but I came in here about five o'clock the other night to find your friend Ruth in front of the safe, and she explained to me that she had made many large sales that day and did not dare to keep the money in the house and that it was too late to deposit it at the bank.

"How did she know the combination?"

I did not know what to answer. I could not tell him that I had given Ruth the combination so that she could get my pearls out to match them up with the one the waiter was bringing. I knew also that that solitary pearl was in the safe.

"Go and open the safe, Leslie."

"I shall do nothing of the kind."

"Then you do not deny giving Ruth the combination?"

"I neither deny nor affirm."

Jack sprang to his feet. He was mad with rage. He picked me up not too gently and set me down in front of the wall-safe from which he had taken the picture which had always hung over it.

"Open that safe, Leslie!"

I did it reluctantly, and the first thing that was disclosed was the six thousand dollars in a roll of bills.

"There," I said triumphantly, "you see it is exactly as she said. She had put money here instead of taking it out."

Jack snatched the bills away from me and hurriedly counted them. Then, shaking them in my face, he exclaimed: "Do you for one moment think that Ruth Ellington could sell six thousand dollars worth of underclothes in that messy little shop of hers in one day? I tell you she is a thief. Her husband sent her this money to pay off his creditors and he probably has sent her other money before this which she has used to put up that shop of hers. And now she is dragging you into the mess. I tell you, Leslie, right now I shall put a lien on this money tomorrow and also on the shop, asserting that she has used money that belongs to me.

"I'll send her to prison if necessary."

"If you do this, John Prescott, I will walk out of your house tomorrow and never look on your face again."

"God God, Leslie, what do you mean?"

NEW YORK.—(Associated Press).—Stock prices moved up vigorously at the opening of Saturday's market but the advance was interrupted at intervals, by heavy profit-taking and a renewal of bear selling in several sections of the list. At the close the average of 20 leading industrials was at the highest point since last April and less than five points below the peak of the preceding month.

High prices specialties were again the center of speculative interest, Corn-Products, which has established a recor dhigh nearly every day this week, touched another new top at 187, closing 1-2 lower for a net gain of 3 1-2 points, United Fruit crossed 2?1 to the highest quotation since 1921 and then broke to 193 for a net loss of two points on the day. General Baking closed six points higher and American Tobacco 4 1-2

U. S Steel was heavily bought in anticipation of a good earnings statement and favorable dividend action next Tuesday, touching 104 7-8 the highest price since last spring, but forfeiting most of its gain in the late realizing movement. Bethlehem Steel closed 1 3-4 higher, the other independents showing little change on the day

BULLISH DEMONSTRATION

A bullish demonstration was conducted in some of the oil shares just before the close. Atlantic Refining, Pacific and Standard Oil of California, each closing 2 1-2 points higher. Fresh selling broke out in the Pan-American issues on publication of Washington dispatches forecasting the cancellation of the company's lease on the naval oil reserves in California as a result of disclosures before the senate committee, the net decline in both stocks being about two points.

Speculators for the decline again attacked the motor and chemical shares which have proved vulnerable to selling pressure. Losses of 1 to 1 1-2 points were recorded by American Agricultural Chemical preferred, Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred Willys-Overland preferred and Stewart Warner, but Studebaker, Chandler and Davison Chemical yielded only fractionally on the day.

RAILROAD FEATURE

Strength and activity of Pennsylvania Railroad, which ordinarily moves within narrow limits, was the feature of the railroad group. The stock advanced two points to 46 1-4, closing slightly below that figure, having apparently being influenced by the announcement that its leases with the Lehigh Valley and Baltimore and Ohio for the use of the Pennsylvania station would not be renewed when they expired because of its own increased requirements.

"Big Four" advanced four points on one sale and Delaware and Hudson advanced 1 1-4 Southern Railway was again active, closing at 44 3 8 for a net gain of 1-2.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was quiet with rates exhibiting a firm tone Demand sterling advanced slightly to $4 22 3-4. and French francs were quotet just under 4 50 cents other rates showed only nominal fluctuations.

The weekly clearing house statement showed decreases in most of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments dropped $22,-695,000 reserve of member banks in the federal reserve bank fell $37,-192,000 and net demand deposit slumped $17,972,000. Cash in own vaults increased $1,593,000 and time deposits $2,681,000 Aggregate reserve totaled $492,096,000 leaving a deficit in reserve of $16,524,660, a decrease of $34,821,900 below the week before which showed an excess reserve of more than $18,000,-000.

PRODUCE REVIEW

(By Swift & Co.)

Full receipts of live poultry at eastern markets caused a larger supply than was needed, resulting in a lowering in values of approximately 2 cents a pound on live fowl.

The butter market has shown a little more strength toward the close of the week, due to colder weather thruout quite a portion of the producing territory.

Receipts of fresh eggs are gradually increasing. Markets are fluctuating from day to day, due to supply and demand, principally influenced by changing weather conditions. Prices, however, are still on a pretty high basis, and with production gradually increasing, the outlook is for a somewhat lower price level on fresh stock.

A meeting of those interested in the egg industry was held with representatives of the Bureau of Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture on Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 21 and 22, at Chicago, to consider tentative plans for standardizing the grades of eggs. Much good is expected of this conference.

PRICES OF CORN ON DECLINE

Reported Decrease of 2,000,000 on Farms Main Factor

LARGER SUPPLY FORECAST

Changes in Wheat Slight—Oats Move Downward

CHICAGO—(Associated Press)—Corn and oats lurched down in price Saturday, chiefly owing to government reports that on Jan. 1, hogs on farms had decreased 2,926,000 in number as compared with a year before. Corn finished unsteady, ⅝ to 1⅛c net lower, May 79¼ to 79⅜c with oats ⅜@½ to ⅝c down and wheat ¼ off to ¼c up, May 1.08¾ to $1.09 and July $1.07⅝. In provisions, the outcome varied from unchanged figures to 12c decline.

Weakness in the corn market was apparent from the outset and the day ended with prices at almost the bottom level, which had been touched. It was generally assumed that the government report indicated more corn to sell later in the season. The contrary view that a big part of the crop had already been marketed in the shape of livestock failed to have much influence. Bearish sentiment was further emphasized by signs that country owners of corn showed a disposition to loosen their hold in some sections, altho purchases made by Chicago handlers were limited. A sharp drop in prices at Kansas City received particular notice here.

BUYING SUPPORT

Buying support which helped to check breaks in the corn market was based more or less on estimates that this year's crop falls ten per cent below that of last year for starch making purposes and that the feeding values is also ten per cent less than was the case last year.

Wheat was relatively firm as a result of smallness of primary receipts and because a liberal reduction in the United States visible supply total on Monday was looked for. Besides the Liverpool wheat market was higher, altho this was said to be due chiefly to the British railroad strike.

Provisions were depressed by selling on the part of packers.

WILL BARS FIGHT ON PROVISIONS

Attempt to Break Document Means Disinheritance

An attempt to break or set aside the last will and testament of the late T. S. Hanthorn, wealthy Bath-tp resident, will result in the person making the attempt losing his or her share, the document provides.

Reading of the will was held in probate court Saturday. Under terms of the instrument, Mrs. Hester A. Hanthorn, widow of the decendent, will inherit all household goods, and all chattels of every description save bonds, notes, money and mortgages, in lieu of one year's living, allowed by law.

Rollie E. Craig, grandson of the decendent in the event of the death or remarriage of his grandmother, will receive the sum of $500.

Upon the same terms Lloyd Craig will receive the sum of $100 and Nellie Stokesbury, a granddaughter, the sum of $1000.

In the same way Rollie Craig is made the beneficiary of a 56-acre tract of land in Bath-tp Rollie Hanthorn, son of the decendent, will inherit a half interest in 100 acres of land, upon death of his mother, but must pay to William Hanthorn, the sum of $4000 within five years William Hanthorn will receive all notes, bonds and securities

The will is not to be attacked by any or all of the beneficiaries. Mrs. Hanthorn is nominated as executrix under terms of the will.

VAN WERT LIQUOR RAID NETS 7

Five Face Charges of Selling as Result of Roundups

Seven alleged offenders were arrested at Van Wert Friday by police, who made a sweep of suspected liquor places in the city on evidence alleged to have been procured by special investigators. Those arrested are:

Orval Thomas, on charges of selling and possession; George Glossett, soliciting, Floyd Dicks, keeping a place where liquor is sold; John Stripe, selling; Forest Thomas, selling; Walter Miller, selling; G. L Miller, selling

All seven offenders were arraigned and pleaded not guilty, and were released on $1000 bond each. Tuesday they will be taken before Mayor Lowe for trial.

The cleanup effected, it is stated, will practically curtail the sale of liquor in the county seat town.

Investigators who were operating in the city allege they were successful in purchasing whisky of dubious quality from five of the seven men arrested. The others were arrested as accessories in the traffic in illicit liquor.

Much of the whisky sold in Van Wert, according to investigators is manufactured on farms in the surrounding country or imported from big dealers in Ft. Wayne and Toledo.

All of the raids are said to have been carried out by Van Wert police.

Investigators are said to have been obtained to procure evidence of violations by Van Wert-co prohibition forces.

WAITIN' FER AN OPEN'

If we'd all give up an' go t' bed th' world would cease t' move—progress would stop an' stagnation would set in an' thrive. We must all have a goal an' be forever movin' toward it. Ever'buddy might t' be headed somewhere, but ever'buddy should be guided by th' fundamental rule an' injunctions o' life. The strong, hearty human bein' with an alert mind an' free from neuritis is a liability settin' around. Th' high powered car, polished an' shinin' with a tank full o' high test gas an' four good tires is not doin' anybuddy any good parked at th' curb. A great, empty sky scraper is not fillin' its mission in life. It must be filled with busy people. Th' street car must move t' be o' service. An idle churn is neither useful or ornamental. People must move—must be active an' busy at somethin'. Some o' them should be kicked an' urged 'till they employ ther talents fer th' greater good t' themselves an' those about 'em. Th' world is full o' people that only need spurring. Opportunity is no respector o' person. It comes t' all, an' it comes often. Folks that complain that they've never had a chance have jest simply not been available t' grab off th' opportunities that are allus snoopin' about. It's jest as easy t' catch on an' git t' th' front today as it wuz when we could have bought th' ground where th' courthouse stands fer fifty cents. If ther ever wuz a time in th' history o' civilization when a hustler could git t' th' front its today. Jest look at th' things t' git into! Shoe repairin', soft drinks, fillin' stations, plasterin', bricklaying', an' politics. Ther's so many gainful pursuits today that th' hustler must git bewildered. It's jest about considered a reflection if a feller's a pedestrian these days. We hain't seen a patch on th' seat of a pair o' trousers since 1914. Women never looked as nifty, door yards wuz never mowed closer, soda fountains wuz never as overtaxed, labor never had as much time fer golf, two dollar neckties never moved as fast, an' squeaky shoes are unheard of, doctors wuz never as hard t' locate, domestic help is out o' th' question, big, liberal egg sandwiches sell fer a dime, th' seas an' highways are cluttered with tourists, we have t' go t' work at five a. m. t' find a parkin' place, th' banks are robbed as fast as they accumulate anything, people don't think anything o' bein' raided, fake investment concerns impoverish whole states, an' yit th' grand ole country moves right along an' seems t' recupe her losses overnight. Th' very idea o' anybuddy sayin' they have no chance t' git t' th' front! If they'd stand in th' right place they'd be shoved front.

What To Do For Frail, Feeble, Old People

"When age begins to thin the blood all the vital functions slow down and impair the health. In such cases," says Dr. Emil Sauer, "I know of nothing better than true organic iron."

"What old people need most, is something to put back the iron in their blood. Without iron nothing you eat does you any good. Your food merely passes through you. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food."

"For old people who feel their former strength slipping away, I always prescribe Nuxated Iron, which contains iron like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples and like the iron in your blood. It is a true tonic, blood and body builder, and in my own practice, I have had aged people tell me that they felt years younger often in only a few weeks' time."

Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Emil Sauer, may be had at any good drug store. Try taking two tablets three times a day for two weeks, and if you do not feel years younger with new strength, energy and health, your own druggist will gladly refund your money.

is a stranger to anyone who will not allow the neglect of his teeth. The beginning of such annoyances is the beginning of a regret that a tooth must be extracted.

Think of the vast difference of a simple operation 60 days previous to this time, a sound tooth and a small sum to make it so.

One reason my operations save teeth—toothache—dollars—my patients enjoy to call occasionally to visit and chat about teeth.

A brief call will be a profit to your teeth.
